WILLOW STREET (Lancaster Co.) — The annual Pennmarva Young Cooperator contest was held this week with 21 young farm couples from Pennsylvania, Maryland, and Virginia competing to represent their dairy cooperatives at future national and regional meetings and being honored for their leadership skills and knowledge of cooperatives.

Pennmarva is the joint organization of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative, Southampton and Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative Reston, Virginia.

At the convention, the young cooperators were involved in an interview process, and they attended seminars related to making quality milk. In addition, discussion groups covered topics on how to use milk futures from the Chicago Mercantile Exchange and how to relate to the task of public relations and marketing for the dairy industry.

"That Milk Thing," MAMMA's Disney-like character that entices children in the Philadelphia school system to drink milk, dropped in for the cooperator's breakfast Wednesday morning.

At the awards luncheon the following couples were named as the honorees.

For Atlantic Dairy, Kenneth and Denise Sanner, Kutztown, were named Outstanding Young Cooperators. And for Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers, J

Lessons Last Lifetimes At Garber Conservation Farm

MOUNT JOY (Lancaster Co.) — Keep off the waterways Don't knock down the tops of the terraces Never disk harrow across the terrace edges.

Jay Garber, son of Clarence Garber, remembers those instructions from his father. Jay passed the same instructions to his three sons and all employees at Spring Lawn Farm in Pequea Township.

And Jay said it now feels good to hear his sons telling their employees the same thing.

It's that tradition of passing along the very themes of soil conservation that helped garner the Garber family, including the families of David A. and Joe C. Garber, the cherished 1996 Lancaster County Outstanding Cooperator Award Thursday night at the Lancaster County Conservation District annual banquet at the Country Table Restaurant.

Spring Lawn Farm includes 200 acres (128 owned, 72 rented) with 150 cows and 130 heifers. Joe Garber is in charge of the dairy herd, and Dave concentrates on the crops and fieldwork.

According to slide narrator Gerald Heistand, assistant Chesapeake Bay administrator for the district, Spring Lawn Farm has the distinction of having some of the "oldest terraces in Lancaster County.

"In 1939, Clarence Garber was the second farmer in the area to put terraces on the land. They were put in with a pull-type grader." More than 200 tons of flintstone were

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A conference committee of the U.S. Legislature on Thursday approved a 1996 Farm Bill Conference Report which means that a complete Farm Bill is expected to be presented to President Clinton for signature this coming week.

According to a news release from U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar, who chaired the conference committee, the farm legislation "gives farmers freedom to plant for the market and ends Depression-era production controls."

Whenever the Senate and House approve almost identical pieces of Trucklot buying interest was light and unaggressive. Offerings on all items ranged adequate to available if needed. Retail and distributive movement was disappointing; floor stocks were more than sufficient in most quarters and some dealers looked to delay receipts on commitments for late week delivery. Trade sentiment was barely steady to weak and highly cautious.

MARCH 20, 1996

Prices for the large sizes were higher, and mediums were unchanged. The market tone was no better than steady for mediums and at least steady for the large sizes. Demand remained mixed from light to good, and was best where featured. Supplies of the large sizes were adequate to instances barely adequate and held with confidence, while medium supplies were at least adequate with continued sales into export channels.

National Grain Market

ST. JOSEPH, MO
MARCH 20, 1996

Good export demand and fund buying supported wheat bids today. Corn bids were firm in reaction to strong wheat and bean bids. Very good overnight sales to Taiwan, boosted bean bids. Wheat 5 to 12 cents higher. Corn 1 to 3 cents higher. Sorghum 3 to 7 cents higher. Soybeans 4 to 6 cents higher. Wheat bids turned higher after good overnight sales to Egypt. Winter wheat growing areas continue to prey for moisture. Fund buying on the board added support to all commodities. Corn bids continued to inch higher on strong wheat and bean trades. Although no overnight sales were reported, corn is doing well this week in the export business. Soybean bids were pushed higher due to good export demand overnight, despite the weaker meal demand again today. Spillover strength from wheat pits was also a factor in higher trends. ## The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

MARCH 25-31, 1996

PALM SUNDAY, MARCH 31.

YEAR OF THE SUNFLOWER

Artist Vincent van Gogh might have been happy to hear that the National Garden Bureau has proclaimed 1996 the Year of the Sunflower. Born on March 30, 1853, in the Netherlands, van Gogh painted for a mere ten years, but produced over 800 paintings, with his sunflower series counted among his best. To Native Americans, the sunflower meant food; its seed is about 24 percent protein and contains thiamine, vitamin E, iron, phosphorus, potassium, and calcium. Sunflowers, as well as lettuce, artichokes, and dandelions, are all members of the daisy family.

"Art, like morality, consists of drawing the line somewhere." – G. K. Chesterton

TIP OF THE WEEK

☞ For potted plants on the porch, try the foot-tall "Sunspot" or "Big Smile" sunflower varieties.

SPICED SEEDS & NUTS

1 egg white
1/2 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cold water
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 teaspoon each cinnamon, cloves, nutmeg
1 cup walnut halves
1 cup pecan halves
1 cup sunflower seeds

Beat egg white with salt, then add cold water. Sift sugar and spices into this and mix. Roll nuts and seeds in the spiced egg, a few at a time, then spread in a single layer on an oiled cookie sheet. Bake at 250° F for about an hour. (Do not overbake; nuts will darken and become crisp as they cool.) Cool on waxed paper. Store in a covered jar.

Makes about 1-1/2 pints.

The OLD FARMER'S WEATHER PROVERBS

OPINION

Dairy Farmers Infuriated

After a recent CBS news broadcast, which infuriated dairy farmers across the country, some of us have felt the need to respond. I'd like to share with you the following letter I wrote to anchorman Dan Rather, who aired the piece on proposed dairy legislation.

(I revised this several times, cleaning up my initial, gut-level-emotion response!)

Have you ever been hungry? Few Americans in positions of leadership and public-opinion setting have likely experienced the pangs of a really empty stomach.

Americans are the best and most-inexpensively-fed people on earth. That's because American farmers have consistently grown more efficient. Less than one million farmers — those who sell $10,000 or more worth of agriculture goods per year — not only feed our nation of billions, but feed billions more around the world.

What a disappointment that a recent CBS news report by you has done the American dairy farmer a serious disservice. That report, aired February 2, charged that dairy farmers had secretly conspired to develop legislation that would cost American consumers some 2.5 billion dollars and put "additives" in milk.

During the past year, agriculture and food industry representatives testified at Congressional hearings held around the country toward developing new farm legislation. These were public hearings, widely covered by the press. Working from the basis of those hearings, legislators developed the dairy proposals recently voted out of the House Agricultural Committee. This is hardly a secretive process.

Yes the goal of that legislation is to modestly increase the price of raw milk. Dairy producers today are receiving comparatively less for raw milk shipped from their farms than they did a decade ago. Such depressed income levels, compared to the inflation which has steadily increased prices of everyday input, are creating a severe financial crunch to our nation's dairy farm families.

Your report projected an increase per gallon of milk to consumer of 40 cents. Industry estimates the per gallon increase under the proposed dairy legislation to be about 9 cents. Ajusted for inflation, consumers are already paying less for a gallon of milk than they were in the 1950s. Raw milk price has traditionally had little effect on the retail price, since the farm is only about one-third of checkout cost of a gallon of milk.

Meanwhile, the cost of the dairy program to America's taxpayers has dropped from $2.5 billion in 1983 to $4 million in 1995; dairy farmers actually pick up most of the tab through assessments on every pound of milk they sell. But, farm support programs are a form of hunger insurance for the consuming public. Today, there are virtually no stocks of dairy commodities on hand in government storage, should some disaster strike.

Now, about those "additives." The proposed legislation would simply increase the minimum standards of solids-non-fat in milk - the nutritious but NOT FAT things like protein, calcium and minerals — to standards that California consumers have enjoyed for many years. California milk is consistently rated superior in taste tests. And, milk fortified with higher solids-not-fat is not only better-tasting, it's more nutritious.

Milk is not manufactured in the back of supermarket dairy shelves. It can only be produced by the minor miracle that is the dairy cow. If you and all consumers are to have ready supplies of milk in your refrigerators, dairy producers must be able to earn a financial return that enables us to maintain our herds and our farms.

Mr. Rather, your dependability, your believability, your credibility has always seemed above reproach. We challenge you to restore our confidence in your reporting with an airing not just the retailers' side , but also the producers' side of this important public issue. Sincerely yours...etc.

And sincerely irritated about irresponsible, distorted reporting. — Joyce Bupp, On Being a Farm Wife, Column reprinted from February 24 issue, Lancaster Farming

My name is Jennifer Davis and I am the 1995-1996 Berks County Dairy Princess. This past year I have devoted my time to inform the public of the importance of buying and using real dairy products, but recently I learned my own lesson in real versus imitation dairy products. I know that dairies are in the business to make money and produce drinks for the public to buy, but what I don't understand is why dairies don't use the products that are brought to them, like milk. It is very difficult for myself and others to educate the public to buy real dairy products when there are all of these imita-

Now Is The Time

By John Schwartz

Lancaster County Agricultural Agent

To Manage Pastures

Grazing time is rapidly approaching. Glenn Shirk, extension dairy agent, reminds us that well-managed pastures may be an economical source of excellent quality feed for cattle.

The management of pastures requires a lot of knowledge and skill. Two things to be considered are the gradual acclimation of cattle to pastures and keeping up with the spring flush of growth.

You may meet both of these challenges by grazing early in the spring while pasture growth is only two to four inches tall and rotating cattle rapidly through the pastures. This early grazing will slow down the initial growth and will start to stagger the maturity of the aftermath growth.

Turning cows out to graze early in the spring while very little pasture growth is present is one way of gradually acclimating them to more grass in the ration. Another way to acclimate the cows is to restrict the amount of access time to the pasture.

To Be Aware Of Bt Corn

According to Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, several companies will be selling field corn with the ability to produce Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt).

Bt is a bacteria which kills the larvae stage of the European Corn Borer (ECB).

The ECB may be a very destructive pest of corn. An infestation of one ECB per plant will reduce corn yields by five percent. This effect is cumulative up to six ECBs per plant, which may result in a 30 percent reduction in yield.

It is very difficult to control ECB because of the time it attacks the corn plant.

The borer usually attacks corn near the silking stage. This means a pesticide application is difficult because of the height of the corn.

In addition, the borer only feeds externally on the corn for a short period of time before tunneling into the stalk where a pesticide will not contact it.

The new corn, which contains Bt, will kill ECB as it begins to feed on the corn plant. Bt is very specific and will not kill other insects.

To Be Aware Of Roundup Ready Soybeans

Another new technology farmers may use to produce crops with better pest control is Roundup Ready Soybeans.

Robert Anderson, extension agronomy agent, reports Roundup Ready Soybeans will allow farmers to spray the herbicide Roundup over soybeans without injury to the soybean itself.

Roundup Ready Soybeans have been breed to be resistant to the herbicide Roundup. Roundup is a herbicide which controls almost all plants but becomes inactive upon reaching the ground.

Monsanto, the marketer of Roundup, will require growers of these soybeans to sign an agreement not to save seed for replanting. Monsanto sees the new soybeans as being ideal for the no-till market.

No-till farmers will be able to plant the soybeans and wait to see what the weed pressure is before applying any herbicide.

Roundup is very effective on the control of almost all perennial plants which may be a problem in no-till farming.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

FEAR'S BOTTOM LINE
March 24, 1996

FEAR'S BOTTOM LINE
March 24, 1996

Background Scripture:
Matthew 25:14-30
Devotional Reading:
Matthew 25:1-13

I'm afraid that, had I been there when Jesus told his parables, I might have argued with him on some of them. Last week's parable of the laborers in the vineyard is one of those and this week's parable of the talents in another. I probably would have argued on the basis that the verdict in either case seems unfair — at first glance.

In the parable of the talents (a unit of money) my heart and sense of fairness go out to the poor servant who got only one talent from his Master. Couldn't we say that this man acted prudently? He was feaful of losing the one talent he was given, so, instead of investing it, he hid it. Can't we give him a good grade for right intentions if not initiative?

Why did he choose this course? He was afraid! "Master, I knew you to be a hard man, reaping where you do not sow, and gathering where you did not sow; so I was afraid, and I went out and hid your talent in the ground" (25:24,25). Maybe if he had had more than one talent, he wouldn't have been so afraid of losing it. In a sense, isn't it God's fault for giving him just one talent? What's wrong with his being afraid.?

FEAR VS. TRUST

What's wrong with our fear is its bottom line; fear is often the opposite of love and trust. We fear because we do not trust in the love of God. It is not that we don't believe in God, but that believing in him, we do not trust him enough to do what he tells us to do. To be afraid is one thing; to let that fear keep us from trusting in God's love is another. That's what happened in this parable: the one-talent servant did not trust God's love enough to be a good steward of what he had received from him. Fear is a faith problem

The servant had a distorted view of the owner of the estate. "I knew you to be a hard man," he tells him, and that's why he hid his talent in the ground and failed to do what his Master wanted. Is it possible that is the way some of us look at God? "Master, I knew you to be a hard man . . . so I was afraid . . ." With all we know of the good news of God's grace revealed in Jesus Christ, is it possible that many of us still relate to God in fear instead of love? And if we fear him, if we regard his as a "hard" Master, is it possible for us to rise above this distorted view of God and entrust ourselves to him?

I think not. If I fear God, then it is myself in whom I trust, not God. It means that I think I am clever enough to avoid his anger. And if I think that, it is my cleverness, my instinct for survival in which I trust, not his grace. The bottom line of fear can never be trust in God.

BELIEF VS. TRUST

Look at the other two servants. They trusted the Master and therefore they overcame whatever feat they might have had, investing their talents and earning more. Did they fear that if they failed the Master would punish them? Apparently not. Unlike the one talent servant, they did not think of him as "a hard man."

How is it possible that all three servants knew the same Master but saw him so differently? They all believed in him, but what they believed about him was very different. Why is it that some of us believe in a vengeful, punitive God instead of the gracious God we see in Jesus crucified and resurrected?

I don't know the answer. But I am certain that the one talent servant's view of the Master as "a hard man" said more about the servant than it did the Master.

Natural 'Predator' Beetle Could Control Poultry House Flies

ANDY ANDREWS
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Entomology professor Charles Pitts remembers when, a few months ago, while sorting through layer house manure in Maytown, he found some strange-looking beetles.

At first, Penn State referred to the unknown predator as the Maytown beetle. But they realized it had a documented name — the red-legged ham beetle. Scientific name? Necrobia rufipes.

What the Penn State fly research specialist found was that the beetle is a natural, generalized predator that could eat fly larvae and eggs. Fly specialists may have struck gold, in a way, because now another beetle could possibly be used to combat the nagging flies prevalent in layer and broiler houses.

Pitts spoke to about 33 producers and agri-industry representatives about the research on the reg-legged ham beetle and other ground-breaking university research on fly control in poultry houses last week at the Penn-State sponsored Poultry Management and Health Seminar at Kreider's Restaurant.

The beetle, measuring only about a quarter inch in size with a midnight metallic green color, sports reddish legs. The males are smaller than the females, but the mature beetle and the larvae sport good mandibles for eating. The larvae is white with a reddish-brown head and tail.

The beetle is "a new thing we ran into that might be an additional tool" to control fly populations in poultry houses, noted Pitts. Problem is, more research is needed to ensure that the natural predator doesn't eat other types of beetles used in the house to control flies.

Studies are under way to see if, when the house populations of fly larvae drop and food becomes scarce for the red-legged beetle, it doesn't resort to eating dry food or the live natural beetles used in the house.

Also, Pitts has helped coordinate and conduct research into the use of pH controls on fly populations. He has used various acid treatments. The pH has been lowered in samples of manure, which kills fly populations readily. Recommendations can be used for spot treatments in the manure, according to Pitts. But right now, use of pH is too expensive for whole house treatments.

Also, more work is under way on the use of black plastic on manure. Windrowing piles of manure with one triple axle load, covered over with black plastic and sealed with dirt, considerably reduce fly populations over two weeks. The ammonia released by the manure kills the fly population.

In addition, more homeowners are taking the initiative to deal with flies. A successful test was undertaken in Clinton County using a variety of fly traps, spaced 50 feet apart at least 50 feet away from the houses, along with fly strips on the front and back porches of houses. The important key is the baits draw flies, and need to be set up a distance of at least 50 feet from the house. The fly traps are inexpensive, and using a dry bait works well.

At the meeting, Pitts asked the producers to consider that cockroaches, in addition to mice, could spread salmonella both mechanically and biologically in the poultry house. It is important to inspect houses at night, because roaches are noctural insects. They can spread salmonella readily through a poultry house.

Now that spring is here, fly concerns will be on the uprise, according to Pitts. An issue that occupies the mind of Pitts is the "ag-urban interface" and the importance of communication between farm neighbors.

"A lot of people are picking up on it very well," he said. "They think it's a serious thing and they're working with the neighbors and talking to them.

"But there are still some people in the industry that are not being cooperative and it's causing them a lot of grief."

It is important to keep the talks and the "interchange" of ideas to solve the problems going.

"You can save yourself a lot of grief if you really talk with these people and not try to ignore them," he said.

Pitts recalled one producer who spread chicken manure, along with partially composted chickens, into a field, and dogs walked into the fields and dragged the carcasses away.

"The attitude you take in working with these people is key," he said.

Income Opportunities Seminar

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — The cooperative extension services of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland, and the Saint Francis College Small Business Development Center have announced a sixth annual seminar designed to help develop income opportunities for rural people.

The seminar is scheduled for April 13 at the Everett High School in Everett, Pennsylvania. The cost is $25 per person and cover lunch, breaks and printed materials. (A $10 discount is offered for a second person from the same farm or home.)

The deadline for registration is April 5.

The annual event brings together landowners and producers of specialty crops and services with regional experts in many non-traditional farm and forest enterprises.

Production topics are to include raising Christmas trees, deer farming, herbs, woodlots, meat goats, organic foods, fish farming, mushrooms, portable sawmills, ginseng and plant nurseries.

The seminar is for those who want to supplement income, investigate new ventures, or disversify existing operations.

For more information, call a local extension office or Susan Fox, director of the Bedford County Cooperative Extension, at (814) 623-4800. Bedford is serving as the host extension service office.

UniGROW360 BROILER FEEDING SYSTEM.
After years of Broiler Pan Evolution, It's Time for a Revolution.

Everyone also knows manually adjusting hundreds of pans every couple of days is unrealistic. The income you would gain in feed efficiency would be lost several times over in labor costs. That's why the UniGROW360 system is so revolutionary.

NOW, YOU CAN QUICKLY AND EASILY ADJUST THE FEED LEVEL AS OFTEN AS YOU LIKE

This special winch enables simultaneous feed level adjustment of a line of UniGROW360 pans with a simple turn of the crank. Unlike other systems, it is not dependent upon level floors.

ADADC Mid East Features New Dairy Products

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A new dairy product designed to be attractive to children is being featured at a barbecue dinner at the 1996 Ohio Spring Dairy Spetacular, scheduled to be held April 4-6 at Ohio State Fairgrounds.

The Spetacular is Ohio's spring dairy event with judging conferences, different seminars, dairy sales and shows. The event is sponsored by the Ohio Purebred Dairy Cattle Association.

The kickoff dinner for the event is a barbecue sponsored by the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council (ADADC) Mid East — the dairy farmer supported dairy promotion and advertisement organization covering Ohio, West Virginia, northern Kentucky and western Pennsylvania.

Set to be held in the Voinovich Center at the Ohio State Fairgrounds, the dinner starts at 4 p.m. and is immediately followed by an annual ADADC Mid East informational meeting.

During the informational meeting, a new dairy product, trade marked, "Moo Kooler," is to be featured.

The Moo Kooler is a line of 2-percent-fat flavored milk packaged in a 12-ounce recyclable, resealable bottle. It is designed for kids.

The information meeting is to end at 6 p.m.

All dairy producers in the ADADC Mid East service area are to receive invitations to attend the meeting and the dinner, which is to be free to those in attendance.

Other than dairy producers in the service area, those interested in attending the meeting should call ADADC Mid East at (800) 292-MILK by March 29.

Wade Named Maryland's Associate Dean Of Agriculture

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Dr. James C. Wade has been named the associate dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources at the University of Maryland College Park and associate director of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service.

His appointment follows an exhaustive nationwide search and interviews with several highly qualified candidates.

Dr. Wade will assume his new position on April 1. He replaces Dr. Nan Booth, who has served in an acting capacity for 2½ years. Dr. Booth will resume her research and outreach work in family and community development at Extension's Institute for Governmental Service (IGS).

"Dr. Booth has provided an essential service to the college by agreeing to perform an important role during a time of transition," said Dr. Thomas Fretz, dean of the College of Agriculture and Natural Resources. "Her insight and in-depth knowledge of the Maryland Cooperative Extension Service have been invaluable to me. Dr. Booth's commitment to Extension programming and her service to Maryland's citizens should serve as an inspiration to all who know her. I wish Nan well as she resumes her research and extension activities.

"We are indeed fortunated to have found an eminently qualified successor to Dr. Booth. I believe Dr. Wade has the education, experience and enthusiasm to help guide the Cooperative Extension Service into the 21st century and I look forward to working as a team to bring Maryland the finest possible Extension programming."

Dr. Wade earned his bachelor's degree in mathematics at Abilene Christian University in Texas and his master's in mathematical statistics/applied mathematics at the University of Texas. He received a doctorate in agricultural economics from Iowa State University, studying under Dr. Earl Heady, distinguished professor of economics.

James C. Wade

Following positions as a systems analyst and an economist in the public and private sector, Dr. Wade joined the faculty at the University of Arizona in 1976. From 1994 to 1995 he has served as acting associate director of programs for the Arizona Cooperative Extension Service, with responsibilities for the overall coordination and planning of all Arizona Extension programs.

Dr. Wade was named associate director for programs in July 1995. In this role, he has developed and maintained relationshisp with department heads, school directors and county Extension directors concerning program creation and delivery; provided linkages between county and departmental faculty; and provided input into the overall leadership of Arizona Cooperative Extension and the College of Agriculture. He also has taken a leadership role in the development of faculty and the establishment of a communications infrastructure that includes computer, networking and telecommunications technology.

Dr. Wade has published numerous book chapters, journal articles, and Extension publications. He also has served on many college, regional and national councils and committees, including the Provost's Committe on Defining Service at the University of Arizona, the AdHoc Team on Internet in Extension, and as the Arizona representative for the Cooperative Extension System's strategic framework process. Since 1994, he has coordinated "Moving to a Higher Ground," a program evaluation process for Arizona Cooperative Extension.

FFA Members Meet With Legislators

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — About 150 members of the Pennsylvania FFA representing chapters throughout the state, along with their advisors and state activities coordinators met with their respective state legislators Tuesday during the organization's annual legislative day in Harrisburg.

It was part of the state FFA organization's ninth annual state legislative leadership conference, a three-day event that includes leadership workshops, seminars, tours, legislative simulation activities, the breakfast, a group photo in the Capitol Rotunda, and then meeting the representatives in their state Capitol offices.

The group met for breakfast at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers, located close to the state Capitol. Each chapter sat at tables with their respective legislators and discussed topics while dining and listening to their officers give short speaches.

In addition, the recipients of the state's Keystone Star Farmer Award were announced during the breakfast.

Ordinarily, this award is made during the annual FFA convention held during the state Farm Show in the Large Arena of the complex in Harrisburg.

However, because of the blizzard that hit south central Pennsylvania and an emergency declaration by Gov. Tom Ridge that shut down all but emergency traffic, the convention was cancelled.

Each year, the star award goes to one outstanding individual in one of four catagories out of all members in the state, making it a prestigious honor.

This year, from Derry Area FFA, Justin Better, of Latrobe, was named the winner of the star in horticulture.

From West Perry FFA chapter, Michael Clark, of Loysville, won the star in production award.

From Twin Valley FFA chapter, Tara Plena, of Honey Brook, won the star in specialized agriculture.

Rose Marie Samogeden, also of Honey Brook and a member of the Twin Valley FFA chapter, was named the star in agricultural sales, service and mechanics.

Also during the conference breakfast, the winner of a $1,000 Arthur Anderson Scholarship was presented to Thomas Karr by Ben DiCarlo, representing Arthur Andersen & Company, a financial consulting business that provides services for business leaders.

For 10 years, in an effort to encourage leadership in potential agricultural leaders, the company has sponsored the scholarship.

To be eligible, youth must be active FFA members; be a state resident; be or have been enrolled in a college agricultural science, horticultural science or related studies program; demonstrate exemplary leadership at the chapter level and beyond, be sponsored by a member of the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation; and plan to continue an agricultural education at either Penn State University of Delaware Valley College.

The scholarship was developed because a lot of the company's clients are members of the Pa. Poultry Federation, and this was a way for the company to give back to the industry.

The FFA members first met Sunday at the Harrisburg Holiday Inn, where they held the majority of their conference.

An orientation program was given by state officers — President Darla Herr, Vice President Heather Benner, North Central Vice President Margi Erway, Eastern Vice President Carrie Hetrick, South Central Vice President Mark Heeter, Treasurer Tonya Anthony, Secretary Jennifer Grimes, Reporter D. Joshua Troxell, Sentinel Lloyd Bier, and chaplain Shannon Horst.

After that, a series of leadership workshops were also presented by officers, on parliamentary procedure, legislative simulation, and some tips on meeting legislators.

Later, they had a celebrity dinner, where the members were to dress up like their favorite celebrity.

After Sunday dinner, they reviewed their agenda for the next day, reviewed committee bills, and

Introducing New Roundup Ultra.

Roundup Herbicide has been transformed using advanced TransSorb technology into Roundup Ultra - a dramatically improved herbicide with added value for growers.

Roundup Ultra Is Rainfast.

Proprietary TransSorb technology enables new Roundup Ultra to penetrate more effectively, so it's rainfast in as little as 1 hour. With that enhanced flexibility, you can apply Roundup Ultra on your schedule.

Roundup Ultra Is Complete And Ready-To-Use.

Just add water to new Roundup Ultra and you're ready to spray. There is no need to add surfactants, buffers or additives of any kind. Yet new Roundup Ultra retains the broad-spectrum versatility of traditional Roundup.

Roundup Ultra Can Lower Your Cost/Acre.

Since it requires no additives, new Roundup Ultra will save most growers money on every acre. And you'll also save time because with Roundup Ultra there's no longer any need to wait for visible signs of control before you begin tillage, weed or planting. Ask for Roundup Ultra the future technology you can count on today.

then set up in their six committees — mirroring the standing legislative committees.

After a half hour of free time, they received an update on the progress of the Milton Hershey FFA chapter, and were shortly in rooms with lights out.

Monday started with three of the state officers leaving the hotel at 6:45 a.m. to go to Milton Hershey School to prepare breakfast.

The rest of the group left an hour later to eat. A presentation by Bob Fortna, plant manager of the Hershey Chocolate Factory was given at breakfast, followed by tours of the school, the factory, the Hershey Zoo and the Hershey area.

After lunch, the group went back to the Holiday Inn and participated in legislative simulations from 1:30 p.m. to 4:15 p.m., when they went to Hoss's Steak and Sea House for dinner.

After dinner they again participated in two hours of legislative simulation, followed by two hours of supervised recreation, and then shortly afterward bed and lights out.

Tuesday began with checkout at 6 a.m., and then going to the Hilton for the legislative breakfast, the group photo and the tour of the Capitol.

While at the Capitol, the FFA members got an exceptional chance to see some citizen protest, which occurs often at the Capitol, as those protesting cuts in welfare innundated the building, visiting legislators, carrying signs and rallying on the front steps of the Capitol.

The state FFA officers are Tim Weller, state advisor, Sheila Reiner, executive secretary, Mary Johnston, adult treasurer, and William Hess, FFA facilitator.

Leaders of the supporting organization, the FFA Foundation, include Glenn Wenger, president; Steve Kline, treasurer; Kerry Hoffman, secretary; Sam Sherk, first vice president; and John Nikoloff, second vice president.

With state officers lined up across the front, FFA members participating in the ninth annual State Legislative Leadership Conference stands on the steps of the state Capitol Rotunda for a group photo.

Completed Farm Bill

According to a news release from U.S. Sen. Dick Lugar, who chaired the conference committee, the farm legislation "gives farmers freedom to plant for the market and ends Depression-era production controls."

Whenever the Senate and House approve almost identical pieces of legislation and leadership decides that the measure must be resolved, a conference committee of representatives from both house of the Legislature is formed to work out the compromises.

Usually, the recommendations of the conference committee are followed by both legislative bodies and subsequently quickly approved.

According to a news release by Lugar, "The bill is officially known as the Federal Agricultural Improvement and Reform Act of 1996. The overall bill includes reforms to the major commodity programs as well as measures on conservation, nutrition, trade, research and credit.

"Commodity farmers (who) have participated in federal farm programs will receive market transition payments for seven years."

The official acronym for the proposed measure is FAIR, according to the news release.

In recorded comments made for radio reports, Lugar said, "The important thing about this bill is releasing American agriculture to make more money."

In those comments, he then explained that with market-driven production, more farmers will make more money and he expects it to boost farm income and thus stimulate rural economies and communities.

Adams County Holstein Club To Tour Lebanon Dairies

GETTYSBURG (Adams Co.) — The Adams County Holstein Club has announced its plans for its annual spring dairy farm tour. This year the tour is to visit Lebanon County on Tuesday, April 9.

Preregistration is on or before April 1. The cost is $20 per person, $10 for 4-H or FFA dairy project members.

Checks should be made payable to: Adams County Holstein Association. Payment can be made to any members of the county board.

The tour is to meet at North Gettysburg Shopping Center and depart promptly at 8 a.m. A rest stop is scheduled at the Lebanon County Agriculture Center at 9:30 a.m.

The first farm scheduled to be visited, about 10 a.m., is the Nelson and Susan Sensenig farm, Meadow-Springs Farm, in Newmanstown. With a rolling herd average of 31,486 pounds of milk, 992 pounds of fat, and 1,006 pounds of protein, the Sensenig herd was the top average-production herd among members of the Pennsylvania Dairy Herd Improvement Association for 1995.

The one-family farm operation practice three-times per-day milking, the use of BST, feed a TMR four times per day with good water and stress cow comfort. The farm was featured in Lancaster Farming last year, prior to making the Pa.DHIA record.

In fact, three of the dairies to be visited, except the Lentz farm which served as host for the Lebanon County picnic last year and the Wagner farm which was featured several years ago, were featured in Lancaster Farming last year.

The tour is to travel to nearby Lynncrest Holsteins owned by Kirby and Cheryl Horst, about 11 a.m.

Active Holstein breeders, the Horsts have developed a solid family dairy operation with a strong exporting side business. Kirby is currently president of the Lebanon County Holstein Club and their 56-cow registered herd has a rolling herd average of 21,012 pounds of milk, 779 pounds of fat and 674 pounds of protein with a herd BAA 108.4.

The Horsts have exported more than 100 embryoes and placed 45 bulls in artificial insemination studs during the past three years.

The 115-acre farm has tunnel ventilation and cow mattreesses in a tie-stall barn, and it has a new heifer barn.

Lunch is scheduled for 11:45 a.m. at Risser's Family Restaurant in Stouchsburg, which is north of the Newmanstown area.

Continuing north in the county, the next scheduled stop is to be at the Gary and Barbara Lentz Farm, Dream-On Holsteins, at about 12:45 p.m.

The couple has a herd of 80 registered Hoslteins with a BAA of 107.3 and with an average of 24,800 pounds of milk.

The breeder of Dream-On Herod-Et, a better known sire and one of 20 bulls sold into aritificial insemination.

The tour heads back south to visit the Curvin Good farm, located just south of Myerstown. The 70-cow registered herd has a 107.6 BAA and average production of 25,600 pounds of milk.

At about 2:30 p.m., the tour is scheduled to visit the Vincent and Julie Wagner family farm located not far from the Goods.

The 60-cow registered herd has a BAA of 107.2 and a rolling herd average of 23,659 pounds of milk, 898 pounds of fat, and 758 pounds of protein.

A frequent shower of cattle with local and state champions, the Wagners also stress quality milk and have the second lowest somatic cell count in Lebanon County.

Reading Terminal Market Urge More WIC Certified

PHILADELPHIA—Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust this week released the results of a study of the WIC Farmers' Market Nutrition Program recommending that the Pennsyvlania Department of Agriculture undertake an aggressive campaign to identify and certify markets to accept WIC farmers' market nutrition program vouchers.

The study found that in 1995 over 34 percent of the vouchers were not redeemed resulting in a loss of $148,258 in federal and state food supplements to low-income women and their children in Philadelphia.

"One out of 12 American children suffers from hunger, but in Philadelphia, a far greater proportion of children suffer from hunger and poor nutrition," said Duane Perry, Executive Director of the Reading Terminal Farmers' Market Trust. "This program can help children most at risk, but there are no markets located in inner-city neighborhoods where families can redeem their vouchers."

A recent study conducted by the Food Marketing Policy Center ranked Philadelphia as one of the worst metropolitan areas for access to supermarkets in inner-city communities.

WIC farmers' market nutrition coupons can only be redeemed at markets certified by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Markets eligible for certification are those selling locally grown produce. There are few, if any, farmers selling in inner-city communities. Encouraging more farmers to sell at markets in inner-city communities would make locally-grown produce available, and benefit farmers and WIC participants.

Chester County Holstein Club Tours Centre County

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CENTRE COUNTY — A group of 56 people participated in Chester County Holstein Club's tour of Centre County last week, visiting a variety of operations that featured registered Holsteins.

The annual spring trip was organized and led by tour committee chairman Duane Hershey.

The group took the three-hour, one-way trip to the State College area from a Chester County farm meeting site, traveling in a tour bus along the scenic Rt. 322 trip from Harrisburg to State College, where evidence of January's blizzard and subsequent larger stream flooding could be seen along the banks of streams.

Five farms were visited in all, and members stopped at a restaurant at the Mifflintown exit off of Rt. 322 on the return trip for a dinner, courtesy of Monsanto Corp.

The annual spring tours are held by many county Holstein clubs in order to provide members an opportunity to visit farms outside their immediate vicinity to see what techniques and pedigree other Holstein breeders use in their herds, and what kind of enterprise they highlight.

The first farm visited was Evergreen Farms Inc., owned by R. Wayne Harpster, actually a Huntingdon County farm, it is located along Rt. 45 between Pennsylvania Furnace and Seven Stars.

In fact, the east-west running Rt. 45 served as the main thorofare to get to three of the five farms — Evergreen, Ideal Holsteins, and Pen-Del Farms.

Two other farms visited were close to Bellefonte — Guided Path, very close to the town of Bellfonte, and Mammoth-Spring Farm downstream from the state Fish and Boat Commission's famous Fly Fisherman's Paradise section of Spring Creek.

Evergreen Farm has the second largest milking herd in the state, currently milking 1,434 cows three times per day, and shipping 102,000 pounds of milk per day, which requires two tankers per day. The operation also employs the use of bovine somatotropin (BST) for greater milk production efficiency.

Eleanor Spranckle, accounting manager for Evergreen Farms Inc., served as tour guide, shepherding the group into the observation room that overlooks the facility's double-40 milking parlor. For most Holstein breeders on the tour, they could milk their entire herd at one time in the facility and still have room for several more cows.

Spranckle said that the milking parlor is the largest that Boumatic ever constructed. Two people are required to operate the parlor.

One person is needed to round up cows and keep control of animal flow into the parlor, while another person cleans freestalls — the shredded-rubber-filled mattressed freestalls are cleaned at every milking.

In all, 52 people are employed by the incorporated dairy farm.

Spranckle explained that each cow wears a collar with a transmitter on it that is scanned as they head into the parlor and also when they are positioned in the parlor.

In the corridor leading from the freestall barns to the parlor a computerized separation system allows automatic separation of those animals that are not to be milked, need artificial insemination, etc.

In the parlor, the amount of milk per cow is automatically recorded by the computer and significant changes in milk production performance can be noticed immediately. This helps keep track of possible animal health problems, in addition to providing useful information for management decisions.

Spranckle said that every morning she is given a report on the amount of feed the herd received and how that compares to production.

When the facility was being built, Harpster had said that it was designed for a milking herd of 1,600. That number was never realized, though some changes are being made to the facility that should increase the number milked by about a hundred.

Spranckle said that maternity pens currently located at the end of the parlor building are being taken out, and a new maternity facility is being built at another site on the 2,500-acre farmstead. She said the maternity pens are actually to being built in what had been the main milking barn prior to the construction of the existing water-flush cleaning freestall facility in 1991.

The just fresh cows at the maternity pens (sawdust bedding) at the old barn are to be milked there until ready to join the main herd. Calves are given colostrum immediately. All the heifers are raised for replacements, while bulls are taken to market each week. In January alone, the farm had 200 calves.

Cow families are important to Holstein breeders such as Paul Hartle, owner of Mammoth-Spring Farm. The cow in the center is Audrey, a 13-year-old Holstein cow classified EX-90 2E, with a lifetime production of more than 230,000 pounds of milk. Bred back to Aerostar, she is the dam of the cow on the right, and the granddam of the cow on her left. On the right is Flo, an EX-92 Nitetrain daughter with an Excellent mammary. On the left is Flo's Enhancer daughter, Miss America, EX-91.

Guided Path Farm, owned by Dan and Penny Ulmer, maintains an 80-cow milking string of registered Holsteins and also produces vegetables and fruits for a farm-lane-end roadside market. A twin-sloped heifer barn is adjacent to an upright Harvestore silo, while the main cow barn is behind the farmhouse, adjacent to the cement silo.

Dan Ulmer, on the right, and wife Penny own Guided Path Farm in Bellefont. Heifers are raised in grouping pens under a double-sloped roof barn.

About half the herd of Holsteins are grade, or unregistered. The farm also bobs cow tails, a harmless procedure that is done to reduce the potential for mastitis — bacteria laden manure can get into tails and easily come into contact with teat ends causing environmental mastitis.

The facility was originally designed for natural ventilation, being built upon a ridge that receives a dependable breeze. However, since the facility was built, fans have been installed and a misting system has been put in to cool cows even more. (Cows prefer cooler temperatures than humans.)

Rubber matting was also installed in the facility to eliminate sore feet that results from too much time on concrete.

The herd is on Pa.DHIA, in a program that allows testing about once every three months. Somatic cell has been running about 280,000 to 310,000, and they do mostly bulk tank testing.

Altogether the farm has about 2,800 dairy animals, but because of the amount of land available for spreading manure, Spranckle said it will not have to have a mandatory nutrient management plan, once the State Conservation Commission gets proposed Nutrient Management Act regulations approved.

The farm has a nutrient management plan and operates under it, but a mandatory plan is only required of high density livestock

Pa. Farmland Preservation Association Organizes

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

YORK (York Co.) — With farmland preservation picking up steam across the commonwealth, administrators of the county programs have formed their own trade association.

The Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Association (PFPA) was organized last October and met March 14 at York County's administrative offices for its first "official" business meeting and workshop.

"Our goal is to reach out to all county farmland preservation administrators," said PFPA president Ellen Dayhoff, director of Adams County's program. The organization offers a support and information sharing network for those in charge of administering the county and state funds earmarked for farmland preservation through purchase of development easements.

Dayhoff heads up the newly-elected executive committee, which includes vice president Tom Daniels, Lancaster County; treasurer Patty McCandless, York County; secretary Betty Reefer, Westmoreland County; and member at-large Sue Costello, Montgomery County.

Attorney Samuel Goodley, who operates a beef farm in Chester County, is working closely with the fledgling organization. During the morning session of the workshop, he addressed tax issues faced by properly owners who donate their easements to the preservation program or sell them under "bargain sales" at less than the appraised market value.

In both instances, a property owner can file a "Noncash Charitable Contributions" income tax form to gain credit against taxes owed for the year in which the easement donation or sale was made. The contribution claimed is the value of the easement donated or the difference between the amount paid for the easement and the actual market value.

Tom Daniels, director of Lancaster County's farmland preservation program, explains possible income tax reductions that may be gained when property easements are donated or sold for less than property market value.

Pennsylvania Farmland Preservation Association President Ellen Dayhoff, center, reviews program plans with speakers Attorney Sam Goodley and Charlene Reilly.

"Never, ever, ever give a landowner representation about the potential tax savings," Goodley adamantly warned the program administrators. While administrators can explain to potential easement donors or sellers that there may be potential tax savings, he related that they must never project dollar values.

"I would shy away from giving valuations. That value is between the Internal Revenue Service and the property donor," Goodley explained. "The taxpayer will have to support that value if an audit is made."

County administrators, he admonished, must always be aware that there is a "fine line between giving information and giving figures that will be used on a tax return."

During the afternoon session, Chester County program director Charlene Reilly addressed the issue of monitoring and enforcing land restrictions involved with easement sales.

As part of an easement donation or sale, the property owner agrees to adhere to certain practices. Such practices might include following a conservation plan, not altering streams and wetlands, or maintaining natural-growth buffer strips. If a property owner or his lessee or tenant violates those agreed-to practices, the property owner can be held legally liable. In extreme cases of violation, litigation could occur against the property owner.

"Try to avoid legal litigation" is Reilly's philosophy. The Chester County farmland preservation director prefers to work closely with landowners in correcting problems or changes to their property which put them in violation of easement agreements.

"I don't believe in slapping a violation letter on a landowner if he's willing to cooperate," she said.

While first-generation holders of property easements are usually aware of the agreements, Reilly has found that succeeding generations — children, grandchildren, or great-grandchildren — may not be aware of easements on tracts of land they hold.

To monitor compliance with easement restrictions, Reilly annually walks each of Chester County's 62 properties in the program. She inspects for problems such as erosion, runoff, sediment deposits on adjacent roads, dumping, improper livestock paths to streams, deforestation, and disturbance of wetlands. Manure storage facilities are checked, as well as widths and contours of field strips.

"I look for happy cows," she said, as a quick and easy sign of a farm's adherence to proper conservation practices.

operations as defined by law.

Spranckle also showed the group the commodity sheds and the bunker silos. She said that corn silage is spread out in all the bunkers first and then is topped with haylage.

She said the entire series of bunks is filled evenly to prevent pressure from one filled bunk from collapsing a shared cement wall with an adjacent bunker.

The first year they used plastic and tires to cover the bunker silos, but she said that proved to be messier.

What they do now is seed the top the bunks with rye to grow a living cover that is removed as the forage is removed. She said spoilage is minimal.

(Although Spranckle didn't discuss it, Evergreen Farm Inc. also sells fishing and hunting priviledges. According to the March issue of Fly Fisherman magazine, the leading national and an international fly fishing magazine featured Evergreen Farm, with Spruce Creek running through it, as one of the best places in the Americas to take a fly fishing vacation.

Chester County Holstein Club Tours Centre County

are charged $125 per day.)

The Chester Holstein tour group then visited Ideal Holsteins, owned by Jake and Sally Tanis. There farm is also located along Rt. 45, but east of Boalsburg.

The Tanis herd is a family farm operation, as were the rest of the herds visited.

The Tanis's were originally from New Jersey, moved to Missouri in 1973 and farmed raising beef and hogs for 10 years, until the farm became no longer available. They then moved to New Jersey to milk cows. Jake said that his family farm was a large operation when growing up and they had milked 1,100 cows three-times per day by hand until 1961.

Then they did a land trade to buy their current Centre County farm.

The Tanis herd has an rolling herd production average of 27,300 pounds, 1,100 pounds fat, are fed a totally mixed ration and milk twice per day. They grow most of their forages.

Jake told the group that he uses no index bulls in his herd. He said he has used Pinehurst and Counselor, some Starbuck blood and is trying to use a lot of Triple Threat.

In his 100-cow herd in the tie-stall barn with shredded newspaper bedding, he had a EX-90 Bouton daugther, a EX-90 Dixiecrat, an EX-91 Dixiecrat, an EX-91 Comander, an EX-90 Playboy daughter (a Lodestar son), an EX-90 Symbol daughter, an EX-91 Paramount, an EX-92 2E Comander; an EX-90 Espirit, six other EX-90 cows and an EX-91 2E red cow out of Caveman.

At Guided Path, owned by Dan and Penny Ulmer, the group got a chance to see a family farm operation within a quarter mile of Bellefonte. The farm is actually located along a locally popular backroad to Bellfonte, between the town and the township building.

The Ulmers have a roadside market at the end of the farm lane and raise vegetables and some fruits to sell, in addition to milking their 80 cows in a 75 tie-stall barn.

The herd average is about 25,000 pounds of milk, and they also raise from 70 to 80 head of young stock.

The milking cows are fed a TMR set for about 75 pounds of milk. (Although some experts now avoid that type of description of a ration, explaining that what makes milk is the amount of nutrition consumed beyond maintenance requirements and that's what determines whether a cow will make 40 pounds of milk or 120 pounds of milks.)

The Ulmers have four young children, Matthew, 9, in 4-H, Miranda, 8, about to start 4-H, Naomi, 3, and Nathan, 4.

They own 109 acres, but farm a total of about 500 acres, though some of that is starting to disappear. A 90-acre housing development is set to go up directly across the road from the farm.

A production herd, they started in 1987. They also grow most of their forages and the rest is purchased from his dad or off the farm.

They have done some embryo transfer work and sold some in November out of an 87-point Aerostar daughter with an Excellent mammary that made 31,000 pounds milk as a 2-year-old.

At Mammoth-Spring Farm, owned by Paul Hartle and family, the Chester County group got to see three of a five-generation Excellent cow family (four with Excellent mammaries). The oldest living is Audrey, a 13-year-old Holstein cow classified at 2EX-90, with a lifetime production of more than 230,000 pounds of milk and bred back to Aerostar.

Her daughter is Flo, a Nitetrain daughter classified 92 points, with an Excellent mammary. Her daugther, Miss America, is out of the Enhancer bull and has classified 91-points.

He also showed a 90-point Mandingo daughter in the 70 cow herd in the tie-stall facility.

The farm is a family operation with son Dick Hartle in partnership with Paul Hartle. His daughter also helps with the books.

The farm is located along Spring Creek near Bellefonte and Hartle sells his milk to the Penn State Creamery and some goes to Atlantic Dairy Cooperative at Mt. Holly.

The family farm used to bottle milk and retail it and supply schools, from 1953 until 1979, when they got out of the retail business.

The last farm visited is owned by Jay Houser, new president of the Pa. Holstein Association.

Pen-Del Farms, owned by Jay and wife Mary, is farmed with son Jim. Jim, single, said he and his father have farmed together for about 10 years, and plan a farm transition in the next two years.

They milk 75 cows in a tie-stall facility twice a day and feed a TMR seven times per day. The rolling herd average is 25,400 pounds of milk.

The herd has a lot of Ned Boy and Chief Mark daughters. On display was an EX-91 Chairman, an EX-92 Chief Mark, an EX-90 Blackstar, an EX-90 Southwind Bell of Bar-Lee, and EX-90 Chief Mark out of a Ned Boy, an EX-90 2E Ivanhoe Bell, and an EX-90 Leadman.

Secretary Brosius Commends Adams County

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius recently commended local officials in Adams County for their unanimous participation in the Agricultural Security Area (ASA) program.

The program protects farmers from township ordinances, including nuisance complaints, which could have a negative impact on farming activities. ASAs also protect farms from condemnation for public purposes.

"Agriculture is Pennsylvania's number one industry," Brosius said. "By responding to farmers in Adams and over 60 other counties, township officials are participating in the Ridge Administration's drive to increase farm profitability."

Adams County has 81,992 acres of ASAs among 619 landowners in 21 townships.

ASAs, which were first established in 1981, are initiated through a voluntary petition to township supervisors by local farmers who collectively own at least 250 acres of farmland.

Farmers participating in the ASA program receive special consideration regarding local ordinances; state agency rules and regulations; farmland condemnation by state and local governments; and state-funded development projects.

Hazardous waste and low-level radioactive waste disposal areas cannot be sited in an ASA.

Farmland being considered for easement purchase through the department's Farmland Protection Program must be located in an ASA of at least 500 acres.

There are 640 ASAs comprising 2.6 million acres in 64 counties throughout the state. Adams County joins Susquehanna and Union counties in having ASAs within every township.

FARM FORUM

tion products out there. What happened to me the other day upset me and is making me question how easy it is for consumers to buy imitation products. I was sent to a grocery store in a hurry for chocolate milk, and being that I was in such a hurry to get the chocolate milk, I did not look at the ingredients or for the Real Seal. When I returned with what I belived to be real chocolate milk, I was in shock when told that I bought imitation chocolate milk. This had really upset me because it was my fault for not looking at the label, and made me wonder that if this can happen to me then what do you think is happening to the average consumer?

I know I am only one person and I can't change anything myself, but I wrote this article because we all must face the fact that dairies all over are producing imitation dairy products. Also since this has happened my family has been discussing that if a product is not a dairy product, then it should not be found in the dairy section of the grocery store because it is not a dairy product. If grocery stores want to sell imitation in the dairy section, then it should be separate from the real dairy products, so that consumers know what they are buying.

There are many questions that can be raised by the subject I have written about in this article, and if anyone has any comments or questions I would love to hear from you. I know that this article could make me look like a bad daiory princess, but I am not and I just want all dairy farmers to know how easy it is to buy imitation dairy products because they are mixed in with the real products. I am a concerned dairy princess wondering how I am supposed to promote real dairy products, and also a dairy farmer concerned about the future of the dairy industry in America.

Like I said I would love to hear your comments to my article, so if you would like to respond here is my address:

Lessons Last Lifetimes

removed from the farm.

The original conservation plan, written in 1944, includes the statement, "Construct terraces between existing terraces with 600 feet of additional outlet channel." The township did not allow terraces that would send water north onto the township road. As a result, pipe terraces were installed to provide a more appropriate water outlet.

The Civilian Conservation Corps put in three waterway dikes, which still function today.

On the steep areas of the waterway, sod from a nearby meadow was dug up and installed on the waterway. Locus trees were cut down, split into posts, and pasture fence was installed for rotational grazing.

At that time, strip cropping was part of a terrace system where every other strip was a hay field.

As farming practices changed through the generations, the Garbers found that by using minimum tillage, every other field did not need to be in hay.

Proper maintenance of terraces has been the key to long-term conservation on Spring Lawn Farm, according to Heistand. When properly taken care of, terraces only need to be plowed up every few years.

"It was not easy to take that first step in conservation," Heistand indicated. "Jay remembers getting flack from neighbors who said that he was making sweet potato hills when the terraces were first installed."

In 1986, the Garbers signed an agreement with the Chesapeake Bay Program. A waste management system was installed, including a manure holding tank and a small basin below the barnyard to collect any nutrient runoff. The outlet of the basin flows into a grassed filter strip, which helps keep nutrients out of the stream.

A catch basin with a sediment trap collects water from around the buildings.

Altogether, Spring Lawn Farm has more than 24,000 feet of terraces, 1,700 feet of waterways, and 1,600 feet of diversions.

Rye is planted on most of the corn ground to cover it during the winter. A recent practice is the use of a three-tooth subsoiler to slit the soil about 14 inches deep to improve water infiltration. Heistand noted that none of the Garbers' terraces were destroyed as a result of last year's heavy rains.

Nutrient management and water quality concerns occupy the management practices at the Garber Farm. Nitrogen is tracked as part of the nutrient management program. Accurate records are kept for all fields. Dave uses the Penn State quick soil nitrogen test. A nitrogen sidedress is added only to fields were it is needed.

Heistand noted that the Garbers believe that conservation ideas which are taught to young people "will be carried with them for the rest of their lives." This is how they have kept conservation on their farm for more than half a century.

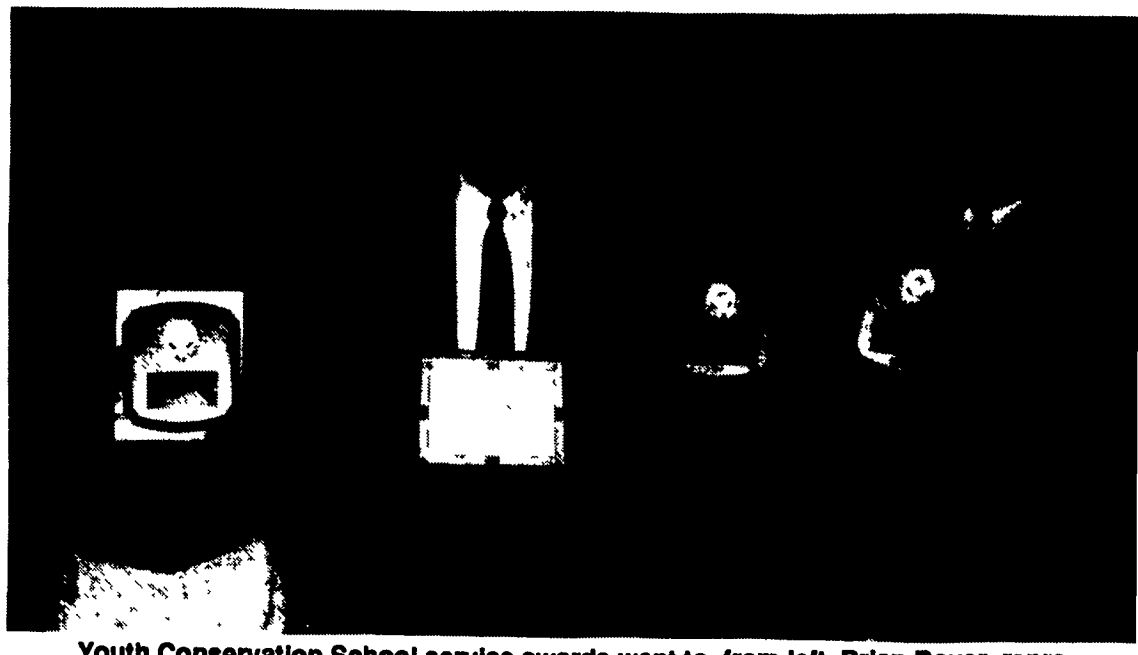
The best management practices, or BMPs, represented here have been in operation for 40-50 years. "The lifespan of these BMPs will be unto several generations," said Heistand.

Also at the banquet, other individuals were honored for their dedication and service to conservation. Youth Conservation Service School awards were presented to Tim Appleby, son of Jim and Sandy Appleby, Elizabethtown; Dan Bard, Conestoga; Stephen Bowman, son of Mary and Ray Bowman, Mount Joy; Brian Boyer, son of Raymond and Diane Boyer, Mount Joy; and Steve Weber.

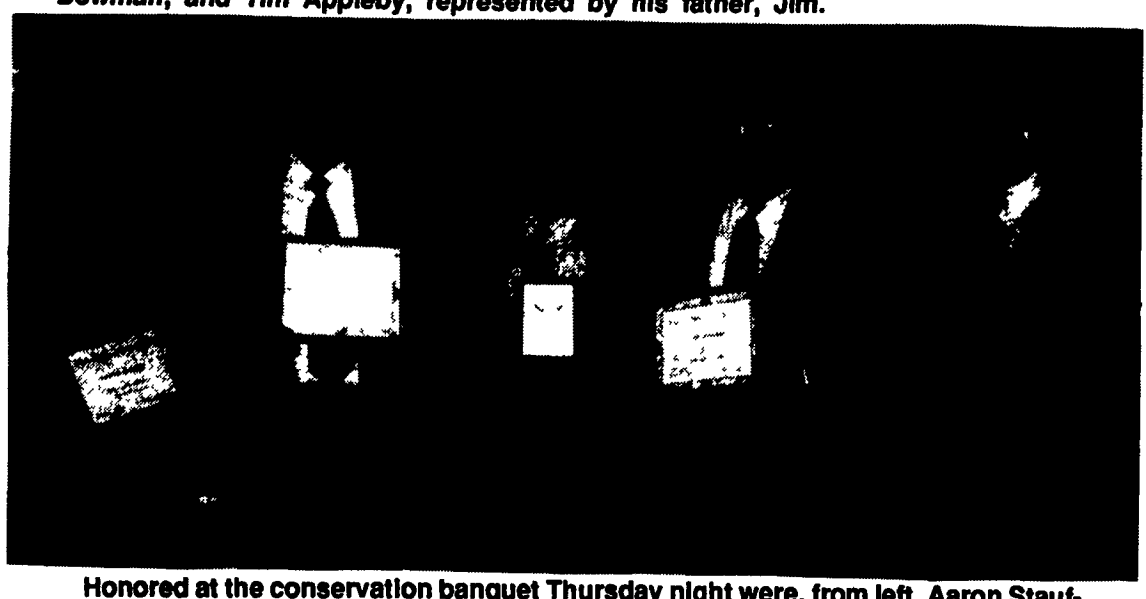
Warren Archibald, the Lancaster County conservation representative for the NRCS (formerly SCS), was recognized for his 22 years of service to the district. James Huber, former county commissioner, was honored for his work in support of the district.

At the banquet, Aaron Z Stauffer, Ephrata, was honored for making conservation a major part of his life, and received a standing ovation.

The Goodyear Award for outstanding cooperator recognition went to Jere Swarr, Manheim, the outstanding cooperator for 1994. Legislator of the year went to Sen. Noah Wenger, (R-36th Dis.) for his work in Chesapeake Bay stewardship and restoration efforts.



Youth Conservation School service awards went to, from left, Brian Boyer, represented by his father, Raymond; Carl Graybill, for his work with the school; Stephen Bowman; and Tim Appleby, represented by his father, Jim.



Honored at the conservation banquet Thursday night were, from left, Aaron Stauffer, represented by Elva Stauffer, for outstanding service; Warren Archibald, for service to the district through the NRCS; Jere Swarr, with the Goodyear Award; and Jim Huber and Sen. Noah Wenger, for service to conservation.

CHORE-TIME ...nobody knows more about feeding
The Right Choice in turkey feeders
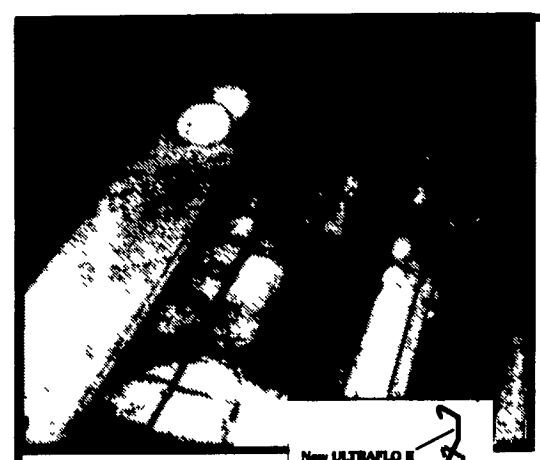
Chore-Time Model ATF Feeder with polypropylene pan shown.
Also available with galvanized steel pan.
• RUGGED POLYPROPYLENE construction of Model ATF pan is available for permanent corrosion-proofing. Material has an ultra-smooth surface so feed and cart won't stick, so it stays clean. Our polypropylene also has a special ultraviolet inhibitor. Liberal 5-year pan warranty! Ask for details.
• FEED SAVER FEATURES: unique "V" pan shape lets you maintain a low feed level; feed-saver ring: 2 1/2" pan lip to catch feed.
• FEED PAN DEPTH on Stage 3 Feeder is 5-1/2 inches; 8-week old birds or the largest toms can reach feed.


New Shape
The difference is the shape of the feeder's trough (at right). ULTRAFLO II's higher trough lip reduces feed waste by keeping it in the trough and not on the floor or in the pit.

Editor's Note: The following is the address of Pa.DHIA president during the recent coporate meeting held in State College.

LANE SOLLENBERGER
Franklin County

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Your board of directors really appreciates your taking time out of your busy schedules to attend the annual meeting.

Pennsylvania DHIA is no different than your farm operation or other DHI's accross this nation. Change is happening and happening rapidly. Today, I'd like to make a few comments on where we have been, are, and are going.

You see, I feel somewhat qualified to talk about the past, for our herd has been on test for 50 years (I'm not quite there yet).

Our (official Pa.DHIA designated) herd number is "3," so we've been a part of DHIA in Franklin County since I was born.

I remember the things we looked at several years ago when we had a display of some of the artifacts from years past — such as centrifuge, scales and buckets and the old hand-written books.

I remember sitting on the floor watching the centrifuge spin and probably asking Wayne Pittman an unending number of questions. Yes, it's fun to look back and even learn from successes and failures of the past, but the present and future demand too much of our attention to spend too much time there.

Technology has changed and organizationally we have had to change.

What we are presently is, in a great part, the result of what you as members have asked for — a member-owned and driven organization.

Though we as members have not always agreed with management and board decisions, guys like myself came along screaming and kicking over reorganization and other issues that now we know were inevitable and best for the organization as a whole, if not totally palatable at the time.

We've dramatically down-sized the organization significantly and this has allowed us to make tremendous strides in paying back the indebtedness of the organization without increasing testing rates at the same rate.

If we had to pay back our debt at the aggressive rate we have over the past year without these cost-cutting measures, I'm afraid Pa.DHIA would either no longer exist, or be unaffordable to many of our members.

The process of down-sizing has not been without its problems and we realize that, but management and your board continue to be committed to making Pa.DHIA affordable and an essential tool to profitable dairying into the 21st century.

As we look to the 21st century, it is very apparent the process of continued change will not slow down, but will undoubtedly perpetuate.

Your board has assigned the task of looking to the future to a Long Range Planning Committee that who is now meeting and studying changes in member needs, technology, and organizational structure needed to make Pa.DHIA a viable organization into the 21st century.

As we go through this process, your input will be vital. Please fell free at anytime at all to call me or any of your board members and share ideas and thoughts that will help DHIA be what it needs to be to make you successful in your business of dairying.

This is your organization!

SCC Completes Nutrient Management Reg Hearings

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The last of the regular public hearings on proposed regulations to implement the state's Nutrient Management Act was held March 11 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center.

Since the beginning of the year, six public information meetings were held by the State Conservation Commission and members of its Nutrient Management Advisory Board (which served to draft, review and recommend regulations) around the state to explain the regulations and to discuss what they mean to those affected.

The four public hearings — held March 4, 5, 6, and 11 — were held to gather comments from the public about concerns with the regulations as written.

According to Karl Brown, executive secretary of the SCC, a total of 17 people presented testimony at the four hearings. Eight presented comments at Lancaster on Monday.

Brown said that all comments were concise and specific to details within the regulations, though transcripts of the hearings aren't expected to be available until April.

Copies of the regulations as printed in the Pennsylvania Bulletin, the official state publication, were distributed at educational meetings, Penn State Extension meetings, through local Conservation Districts and directly from the SCC since published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

Further, the full set of regulations was also printed in Lancaster Farming as soon as they were ready for publication.

In the meantime, while work continues to prepare comments made during public hearings for review by the commission, there is still time for the public to submit comments on the regulations.

Written comments may be sent to the commission for inclusion in the official public record.

Those who didn't attend any of the four public hearing can submit written comments, suggestions or objections to the State Conservation Commission, Room 304, Agriculture Building, 2301 North Cameron St., Harrisburg, Pa., 17110.

Comments must be sent by March 29.

Comments sent by fascimile will not be accepted.

In addition to written comments, a summary of the comments may be submitted. The summary must be one-page and be sent by March 29.

The advantage of submitting comment summaries is that they will be included in the agenda packet that each member of the SCC receives at the meeting when it considers the final regulations.

In other words, while all comments are revelant and considered, a summary can help commission members better understand the points supported through the official testimony.

According to Brown, eight different people presented comments at the Lancaster hearing. At the Lewisburg hearing, five people presented comments. At a Mercer County hearing, two people commented, and at a Somerset County meeting, two people commented.

He said that while the number of people commenting at each meeting was "not a huge number, all had very relevant and good comments. If we would have had one meeting in Harrisburg and got 17 people to show up (to provide comments), that would have been a good meeting."

Comments sent for consideration can be machine printed or handwritten, as long as the comments are easily legible.

There will continue to be opportunity for public comment on the regulations, as the process of developing state regulations entails several more steps.

In the next step in the development of the regulations, the SCC is to review the public comments, comments from the House and Senate standing committees, and the Independent Regulatory Review Commission (IRRC), and then make necessary revisions.

Then the SCC is to adopt final regulations.

The final regulations then go to the Governor's Office of General Counsel for legal review and wording appropriateness.

Copies of the final regulations are then sent to those who made comments. The standing committees either approve or disapprove final regulation and notify the SCC and IRRC.

If IRRC approves of the final regulation, the proposal is reviewed by the attorney general and if given a go-ahead, they get published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin and become law.

If IRRC disapproves of the regulation, then the SCC can withdraw them, or resubmit regulations to the standing committees and IRRC for reconsideration.

In addition, as a legislative body, the state General Assembly can bar publication of the regulations, preventing them from becoming effective.

Farm Bureau Members To Meet Lawmakers

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Approximately 400 members of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (Farm Bureau) will meet in Harrisburg on Monday, March 25, with state lawmakers on priority concerns affecting agriculture. Topping the list of issues will be property rights protection, local tax reform, and roadside litter.

The meeting will be part of Farm Bueau's annual Harrisburg Legislative Tour. Members of county farm bureau legislative committees will be meeting face-to-face with their state representatives and senators to voice their concerns and recommend solutions to problems facing the farming community. The recommendations will be based on grassroots policy developed by the statewide farm group. Farm Bureau is a non-governmental, voluntary organization which represents 25,851 members.

Here's a summary of the recommendations Farm Bureau leaders will be making to their legislators:

•Property rights protection. Farm Bureau is urging passage of Senate Bill 805 currently in the Senate Environmental Resources and Energy Committee. The bill would make government responsible for the impact of its agencies on private property rights. The billw ould establish guigelines for state agencies to follow in evaluating the effect of proposed regulations or regulatory actions on property rights. Public benefit would be weighed against property rightswhen actions limit property use. Landowners would be compensated for actions resulting in regulatory "taking" of their property rights under the Constitution and would be able to sue for compensation for any regulation or regulatory action causing more than a 10 percent property value reduction.

•Local tax reform. Farm Bureau is urging passage of Senate Bill 2 which has passed the Senate and is now in the House Finance Committee. Farmers carry a disproportionate share of the local tax burden because of limitations on local taxing authority which have made property taxes the primary source for increasing revenues. S.B. 2 would give counties, municipalities, and school districts the option to replace real estate and nuisance tax revenues with a personal income tax. Municipalities and school districts could use an earned income tax instead. Counties could impose a sales tax instead of an income taxbut would have to share one-half of it with municipalitiesand school districts. Voter approval would be required in order for local governments switching their tax system to increase property taxes.

•Roadside litter. Farm Bureau supports legislation such as Senate Bill 241 which would allow a state referendum for voter to express their wishes on returnable container deposits. The bill is in the Senate Environmental Resources and Energy Committee. Littered cans and bottles continue to plague Pennsylvania farmers, causing work delays, damage to equipment, and injury to farm animals. Pennsylvania's mandatory recycling law has not provided any relief for farmers. The issue has been brought to the General Assembly many times over the past several years without success and several beverage container deposit bills are currently under consideration. Farm Bureau believes an alternative approach may provide the solution. S.B. 241 would provide a non-binding statewide referendum onthe question of whether Pennsylvania should enact "bottle bill" legislation. By doing so, it would allow the people to express their wishes and provide guidance to the General Assembly in future consideration of the issue.

Other legislation farmers will be discussing with their lawmakers during Farm Bureau's Harrisburg Tour include H.B. 200 to balance state wetlands regulations with individual property rights, S.B. 1432 to update the state's regulations for animal disease control, and a package of bills S.B. 1404, 1405, and 1406 to improve financial protection for farmers selling products to a dealer, raising agricultural products under contract, or storing products with a dealer.

Furthermore, Farm Bureau members will be expressing support for a proposal to create an agricultural registration plate for aoutomobiles and light trucks and for legislation, H.B. 2216, to make further reforms in the workers' compensation system. Legislation to include mushroom composting in the exemption from state air pollution regulations, H.B. 873, is also being supported.

In addition, farmers on the Harrisburg Tour will express the need to restore budget funding Gov. Ridge has proposed cutting at the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine.

The Harrisburg Tour will conclude with a banquet address by Pennsylvania Farm Bureau president Keith Eckel beginning at 6:30 p.m. at the Ramada Inn on Market Square, Harrisburg.

Start with Bicep II. You now have grass control that lasts all season. Plus, you'll get excellent control of over a dozen broadleaf weeds.

If you need additional control of broadleaf weeds like waterhemps, cocklebur or triazine-resistant lambsquarters, pigweeds or velvetleaf, use Exceed to extend your broadleaf weed control.

Exceed with the widest postemergence application window available (4 to 20 inch corn without drops, 48 inch corn with drops) and up to four weeks residual control of 32 broadleaf weeds, lets you optimize the timing of your second pass for broadleaf weed control. # Jersey Registrations, Transfers Increase

REYNOLDSBURG, Ohio — The barometer used to measure the performance of purebred livestock and their respective breed associations has, historically, been the number of animals registered and transferred.

These statistics, more than any other, show the interest in and demand for a breed and the breed's registry association.

Based on the number of registrations and transfers recorded by the American Jersey Cattle Association (AJCA) in 1995, there is an indication of strong interest and demand both in the Jersey breed and the Association.

There were 63,399 animals registered by the AJCA last year. This is the second highest number of registrations in the past 29 years. 29,346 animals were transferred in 1995, the largest number of transfers since 1960.

Registrations are over 52 percent higher than in the 1970s and transfers almost 27 percent higher over the same period. This upward trend is even more impressive when we consider that total dairy cow numbers have declined over 20 percent during the same period.

| Decade | Average number of registrations per year | Average number of transfers per year |
| 1970s | 37,956 | 19,910 |
| 1980s | 55,699 | 24,856 |
| 1990s | 57,806 | 25,267 |
| Percent change 1970s-1990s | +52.30 | +26.91 |

In 1970, there were over 12 million dairy cows, today the number is only about 9.5 million.

N.Y. Young Sire Evaluation Sale Set

MORRISVILLE, N.Y. — Beef producers looking for a new herd sire will be heading to Dryden, New York on April 20 to put their bids in on up to 50 bulls which have completed the New York Young Sire Evaluation Program.

The Young Sire Evaluation Sale, cosponsored by the NY Beef Cattlemen's Association and Cornell Cooperative Extension, will start at 3 p.m. and will be held at the Cornell Teaching and Research Center located on Route 38, four miles south of Dryden, N.Y.

A Parade of Bulls will be held at 1 p.m. This will allow potential buyers to view the bulls while consignors highlight the bull's pedigree, EPDs, and performance information.

The program is an on-farm based program that evaluates bulls based on their expected progeny differences (EPDs). EPDs have been shown to be an extremely important tool for sire selection. This year there will be 40-50 bulls available for sale. Bulls from the Angus, Red Angus, Charolais, Limousin, Polled Hereford, RX-3, Saler, Maine Anjou, and Simmental breeds will be sold.

The bulls have been farm raised and will be brought to the Teaching and Research Center for final evaluation on Friday, April 19. The final evaluation will include yearling weight, rib eye area and backfat thickness, breeding soundness exam, pelvic area measurement, structural soundness evaluation, frame score and health status and certification.

For more information on the Sire Evaluation Program or Sale, contact Ted Perry, New York Beef Cattle Extension Associate, (607) 255-5923. The preliminary sale catalog is available by calling Carol Gillis, NYBCA executive secretary, at (315) 684-7114.

A rancher's dream. You can mount it from either side and it never leaves something nasty to step in.

A stinging sweat ran into his eyes as he watched his buddy crest the next hill. No matter how hard he struggled, he kept falling behind. Auggie Rose knew why. His buddy was riding a Polaris ATV, he wasn't. So he got himself a brand-new Magnum 4x4. Now the truth is, he bought it for its hunting prowess. But if it proved to be useful around his 600-acre beef operation outside Morgan, Utah, so much the better. Well, that liquid-cooled, 4-stroke 425cc Magnum 4x4 quickly went way beyond useful. In fact, it's fast approaching indispensable. That Magnum 4x4 takes Auggie everywhere a horse used to, with a few added advantages: it's much easier to sit on all day. And it carries a lot more equipment. Auggie's riding it to run fence line, feed livestock, irrigate – even pull a harrow. And when Auggie's all caught up with his work, he looks out at the high country and dreams about next hunting season.

Warning: ATVs can be hazardous to operate. Never carry passengers. Be especially careful on difficult terrain. Never ride on paved or public roads. Always wear a helmet and protective clothing. Polaris ATVs may not be ridden by anyone under 18, and all riders should take a training course. For safety and training information, see your dealer or call Polaris at 1-800-342-3764.

Teacher And Students Take Awards

LORETTA GOLDEN
Cambria Co. Correspondent

JOHNSTOWN (Cambria Co.) — "Most Creative Teacher" — this title was recently awarded to Lugene Sheets by the seniors at Greater Johnstown High School. Even though no prize or prestige comes with this title, Mrs. Sheets feels that this shows that the students appreciate just what she and her classes are all about. Lugene is a family and consumer science instructor at the inner-city public high school in Johnstown.

A genuine enthusiasm for what she does is quite evident in her classroom. Boys, as well as girls, are enrolled in the clothing classes. Junior, Jason Maines, is in the process of constructing a man's suit. This is no small task for an experienced seamstress or tailor, but Jason seems to be taking everything in stride. For him, the suit is only a small part of what he gets out of this class.

He remarked, "I really like this class. Mrs. Sheets keeps me motivated . . . when I'm down she always has something good to say to me."

Senior, Larisha Shaw, echoed this sentiment by adding, "You can talk to Mrs. Sheets about anything."

Senior student Lisa Strushensky, right, and instructor Lugene Sheets model two outfits made by Mrs. Sheets. The jacket worn by Lisa won first place in the Art to Wear category and the skirt and vest ensemble worn by Lugene won Best of Show at the Pennsylvania Farm Show competition.

Jason Maines, junior, getting a little instruction from Mrs. Sheets with his suit coat. Boys as well as girls are able to take this class.

Even though Lugene now lives in suburban Johnstown with her husband, Charles and eight-year-old daughter, Samantha, her rural roots are strong. Lugene was born and raised on a small farm near Camp Harmony, Somerset County. Her parents, Dean and Beverly Shaver, still own and operate a small beef cattle operation there. Lugene and her brother, Dean II, and their families still help out at their parents' farm with any chores which require their assistance . . . especially during the busy hay-making season.

Lugene credits her great-grandmother with piquing her interest in sewing. She recells going to her great-grandmother's quilting bees and while the adults worked on quilts, Lugene made clothes and quilts for "Barbie."

As a mother, she points out that Samantha, a second grader, has already sewn a skirt and vest for herself. Sometimes, Samantha joins her mother and friends for "creative" sessions. For instance at one session, they experimented with a technique for "marbleizing" fabric.

Lugene has taught for approximately 15 years with some of that time spent in the more rural Northern Cambria and Shade-Central City School Districts. At Greater Johnstown new challenges were presented. Realizing that opportunities for students in the inner-city area are a little different than for rural students, Lugene has tried to incorporate experiences for them that they might not otherwise have. For the past several years, one item on her agenda has been to enter quite a few of her students' sewing projects in the Cambria County Fair in Ebensburg.

This year a few students even entered projects at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show in Harrisburg. When it appeared evident that one of the entries might not be finished on time for the competition, Lugene invited this student, Larisha Shaw, to come to her home for a few hours to use her personal sewing machine to finish her entry, a two-piece navy blue suit. Excitement was high when it was learned that Larisha's entry had won a second place in the Youth category for two-piece suits.

Larisha, who has never entered any other sewing competition, is very proud of her award. Currently in the 12th grade, she has taken a "clothing" class since grade 8 and thoroughly enjoys it. Just like any other seamstress she really likes sewing, both by hand and machine, but dislikes to have to "rip out" mistakes. She is quite excited by her newest project — making her prom dress, in class, with the help of Mrs. Sheets. Two other students are also making prom dresses.

A busload of students from Greater Johnstown High School was to travel to Harrisburg for the Farm Show but the trip had to be cancelled at the last minute due to road conditons wrought by the 'Blizzard of '96." The "clothing" students had been looking forward to the trip and were disappointed that they were not able to see their items displayed.

Larisha Shaw, senior student, models her two-piece suit for instructor Lugene Sheets. The navy blue jacket and pants ensemble placed second in the youth category at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show. Lugene is wearing her Best of Show outfit.

Besides entering students' items in the statewide competition, Lugene entered a few of her own. No newcomer to competition, she recalls entering items in the Farm Show while she was a student at North Star High School.

A jacket which is part of a tennis skirt and top ensemble, won first place in the "Art to Wear" category. Another entry, a two-piece earth-tone, skirt and vest won the "Best of Show" award.

The "Best of Show" entry was constructed using quite an unusual technique. Lugene cut out many 2-inch squares of complementary fabric, fused them to a backing fabric, and then did some decorative machine-stitching to further attach them to the backing. Some of the squares took on a "frayed" appearance which adds to the unique and attractive look of this outfit.

Lugene explained that some of the techniques with which she has experimented are the consequence of her participation in quilt and sewing shows and demonstrations. She attends these shows with three colleagues and the four women are looking forward to their next outing in Columbus, Ohio.

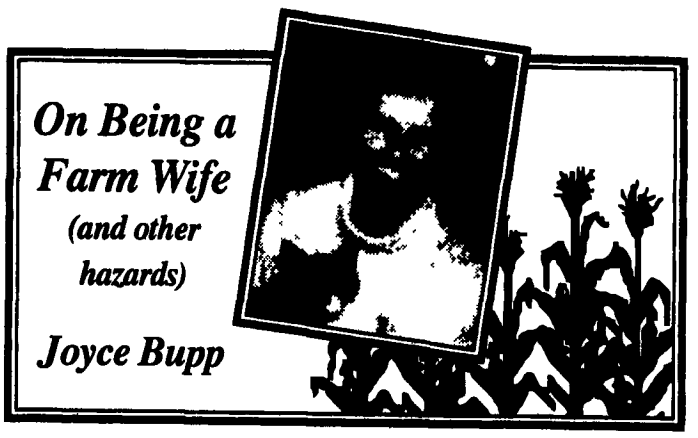
These shows are well attended by people from all over the U.S. This brings an exchange of many different ideas. Participants bring their own sewing machines so that they have the experience of participating in the classes and seminars on their own machines. Lugene attends these shows as a hobby but also with the attitude that there my be something which she can learn that can be shared with her students.

The classroom area at Johnstown High is equipped with the usual sewing machines along with two sergers. The newest addition to the classroom is state of the art computer equipment.

Computer technology provides that a special sewing/embroidery machine be tied in to a graphics display seen on a computer screen. The students are learning to transfer the on-screen displays, i.e., logos, letters, words, etc. to clothing or fabric on the sewing machine. This technology is a real hands-on "school-to-work" application and the possibilities seem limited only by the imagination. One of the first projects which is being done is embroidering (in blue) the school mascot, the "Trojan" onto a plain black tie. School colors are black and blue, and the initial prototype ties are being considered as gifts for the local school board and administrative staff.

Lugene hopes that her students are learning more than just "clothing construction" and "home economics" in her classroom. The course content itself should teach them to be better consumers as adults and provide them with some marketable skills. The interaction that the students have with each other and with their instructor are life skills.

HOMESTEAD NOTES



Dripping sawdust and tiny woodchips in his wake, The Farmer settled into a kitchen chair for lunch, punctuating the motion with a weary sigh.

"I cut a bunch of maple trees down," he related of the morning's efforts.

"I thought you were cutting for fence posts," I said, wondering when we'd begun using maple for fencing instead of locust, which he had planned to cut.

"Well, I was, but I also did some trimming along the woods where the trees are growing out over the fields," he explained. "We're losing 30 or 40 feet from the edges of fields some places."

Very little corn, soybeans or hay will grow where the trees reach their limbs and roots distances out into the cultivated area. Plus, because that crop growth is weakened from the competition for moisture and sunlight, what crop does grow along the woodlot edges is far less thrifty or able to withstand plant diseases or pests. One particular year I recall an army of army worms which invaded corn stands along wooded areas and absolutely destroyed portions of those stands.

We definitely needed a new supply of fenceposts to restore assorted fence run down over the years by overenthusiastic, climbing plant growth hanging on the wires, limbs and trees periodically falling, escape-minded heifers and the endless harassment of the fences by groups of busy-body bulls. And, while he was at it, maple lopping fit in with the morning's locust harvest.

Maples grow with the aggressiveness of weeds, becoming prolific pests along the bright edges of wooded areas. Where a maple sticks its roots, little else will grow. Plus, we've run our woodstove fuel supply pretty low this long winter and need to work on next year's heating source. Maple isn't the best firewood but we mix it with other types. So the lumbering was actually a multi-purposed operation.

The sawing, however, had run smack into another seasonal happening.

"Can you make maple syrup with the sap from the trees we have around here?" he wondered. "The sap is just pouring out of those trees."

And he proceeded to pop the top off an insulated coffee mug which had accompanied him to the woods. Inside was about two cups of clear liquid with just the faintest tint of green; the flow had filled the cup in just a short time.

I've read that you can boil syrup out of our maples but that it takes a lot more sap, since the sugar content is considerably less than that of real sugar maples. Nevertheless, he gathered a couple of large plastic containers for his return trip to the fencerows.

A few days later, a couple of gallons of sap sat waiting on the kitchen counter, ready for "sugaring" to begin. I set two large kettles of the stuff to boiling. The kitchen filled with steam and humidity over the next couple of hours as the sap cooked down and changed to a classic brown shade. Hours later, there was a lot less of it, (some spattered all over the stove) it had a light but distinctive sweetness to it — and was still as thin as water. My respect for professional maple sugar producers was growing fast.

Next morning, before proceeding to fire up the maple sap once again, I flipped the paper to the comics. There was Helga, wife of cartoon character Hagar the Horrible, with a friend who was askig her if they made syrup from their maple trees. When Helga replied that they did, the friend asked where she kept the sap.

"He's in the house, taking a nap," replied Hagar's wife.

"Hagar" and I have agreed to share the estimated final yield of our sugaring efforts — enough genuine homemade maple syrup to top at least one pancake.

Avoid Spur-of-the-Moment Decisions

If individuals could limit spur-of-the-moment spending and cut down on the number of uninformed consumer decisions they make, families could make significant progress toward becoming "debt-free."

"For most families, debt is not built out of necessity. Rather, it is built on impulse," according to Dahlstrom & Company. Some statistics suggest that impulse shopping causes consumers to spend nearly three times more money than they had originally planned.

For businesses, that's good news. For families who are having trouble making ends meet, that pattern can be disastrous. One out of every six families has a credit card problem. One out of ten families can only afford to make minimum monthly payments. For families to become debt-free, they need to increase income, reduce spending or a combination of the two. Then they need to apply the additioinal funds to their accumulated bills.

Dahlstrom & Company reports that the average American has nine credit cards and carries an outstanding balance of $1,850. Twenty-eight percent of households pay their balance in full every month. That means that some families carry significantly higher balances than $1,850. If your family does this, make a plan now to reduce your debt.

Start by hiding or freezing your credit cards. Better yet, cut them up and return them to the company with a letter closing your account. Eliminate as many trips to the mall as possible, and don't keep mail-order catalogs in your house. Each time you reduce your spending, take the cash and put it in a money jar. Apply the money saved monthly to the credit card bill with the smallest balance. Remember, you will need to pay at least the minimum on each card or negotiate an affordable minimum with each creditor. Otherwise, debt collectors may begin legal actions against you.

When buying groceries, shop from a list. Don't buy pre-packaged/single-serving foods. Instead make your own single-servings when you get home. Save the additional money. Shop once each week at the most. The more times you enter a store, the more you'll spend impulsively. Compare prices of prodcuts using the unit labels. When you approach the check-out line, review what you have selected, and put at least ten percent of it back. Start with desserts, snackfoods, pastries, frozen dinners. Even cold cereals can be expensive. Select hot cereal ingredients or store brand cold cereals and save.

Eat at home when possible. Pack foods for road trips, family outings, and work. If you must eat out, plan to pay cash. You will eat less extravagantly. Limit the number of drinks to one per person. Restaurants have high charges for beverages and desserts. After a meal order coffee, but skip dessert. Meet a friend or colleague for lunch or dessert rather than dinner. Each of these decisions saves money. This could save you at least $5 per person. Put that cash in the money jar. Each time you spend less in a budget category, apply the savings to your debt.

You can use this same strategy with home utilities. Reduce your electricity or water bill through family conservation efforts. Post the company statement on your refrigerator. Each time it drops, take the savings and pay extra on your MasterCard.

Cancel magazine and newspaper subscriptions. Read your favorite publicationi at the local library instead. Raise your deductible on your auto and homeowner's insurance. Each of these ideas will help you redirect money from unnecessary purchases to paying off your debt.

Always ask yourself questions that will curb impulsive spending. Do I really need it? What will happen if I don't buy it today? Why have I gotten along without it until now? Can I rent or borrow the item for a one-time/limited use and save?

If a family found $50 extra each month to apply to a $3,000 credit card balance (in addition to the minimum payment of $60), they could reduce the time it would take to pay off the entire bill from eight years to three years. They would also save $1,800 in interest payments.

TV TIME AND KIDS

After the family, television is probably the most important influence on child development in our society. Children in the United States view an average of three to five hours of television daily. By high school graduation, the average teen will have spent more time watching television than in the classroom. Television's popularity is easy to understand: TV informs us, entertains us, and keeps us company. Television brings the world into our living rooms.

It is difficult to document the effects of such extensive television watching by children. However, television viewing has been related to obesity, violence and aggressive behavior. It may affect what children learn, it may promote stereotypes, extremes of sexual behavior, and the use of drugs and alcohol. With that kind of influence, you can see that helping your children use television as a positive, creative force will help your children avoid television's negative impact.

Following are some guidelines parents can use to guide their children's TV viewing.

Set limits — First, know how many hours of television your children watch. Then, limit viewing to 1 or 2 hours per day. Be firm about reducing the amount of television your children watch. Remember, that before televisioni, families found other means for entertainment and fun.

Your children may not like being kept away from the television set. Television is designed to lure viewers, so programs are apt to be filled with commercials that promote other programs. The word of mouth campaign on playgrounds and in school cafeterias is powerful. Children will not give up television easily; they need to be provided with other options.

Establishing better TV habits for your children is well worth the effort. Television watching is often more habit than choice — and some even believe that TV watching is addictive. Help ease the transition by offering other activities such as sports, games, chores, reading, conversation, or hobbies. You can help even more by joining your children in these activities.

Plan — When you limit TV time, your children will have to plan viewing time carefully to get the most enjoyment from TV. Using a TV guide or newspaper is better than flipping the channels to "see what's on." The set should be turned on only for certain programs and it should be turned off when they are over. Approach a television program as you would a movie. Decide which show to see, and then talk about it after it ends.

Participate — As you children begin to learn how to live in the world, you are the most important role model - television is the second most important source of information. Your children will learn the most from your views about the televised materials you see together.

Watch at least one episode of each of your children's favorite TV shows. Ask them what they liked about the programs and find out what impressions these shows leave. TV programs may help you discuss topics that are difficult — family life, love, sex, war, work, etc. A poor program might turn out to be a good learning experience for your children if you are there to help them get the right message, while the best program might be wasted without your help to think about and question what was seen.

If you forbid certain programs your children are already watching and you object to the subject matter, say so and then explain why. Remember, it is your job to explain what your children see on TV.

Talk With Your Children — If you see a topic on television that interests you — such as homelessness, drug use, or family problems — help your children relate to the issue with an example the child can understand. Do you know someone with a similar problem? Ask your children what they would do in a similar situation.

Point out the TV world is not real. Young children, in particular, sometimes have a hard time knowing what is real and what is not. If your children are very young, they may not be able to tell the difference between a commercial, a cartoon, or real life. While your children watch a program, explain that a character on TV is make believe. Ask questions what the character might do in real life, and then explain that some actions do not always apply during day to day living.

Resist Commercials — Help your children understand that advertisers target commercials to certain programs. When a toy or cereal advertisement comes on during a cartoon, tell your children why advertisers chose to buy time during their favorite show. With the right guidance, your children will learn that television has positive and negative values.

Express Your Views — One of the best ways to change commercials or programs is to call your local television station. When you are offended or pleased by something on television, let the station manager know. Write or call the network and/or the program's sponsor. Stations, networks, and sponsors care about parents concerns. Don't call or write just to complain — be specific. It is also important to voice your approval. Programs you like may not get high ratings, and your support may keep them on the air.

If you think a commercial misleads viewers, write down the product name, channel and time you saw this commercial and describe your concerns. Then call your local Better Business Bureau with this information, or send it to the Children's Advertising Review Unit, Council of Better Business Bureaus Inc., 845 Third Avenue, New York, NY 10022.

Television is more than just a way of handling boredom. It can be like an uninvited guest, teaching your children lessons that you do not endorse. You must know what your children are watching and help your children understand and learn from what is seen.

New from – Great Plains

12' End Wheel No-Till Drill

No-Till technology and maximum productivity in a 12' size

All of the benefits of Great Plains no-till technology are now available in a new 12 foot size. The new 12' End Wheel No-Till drill is designed to handle the planting needs of small to medium sized operations with maximum productivity.

Built to the high quality standards of Great Plains, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill will plant in the most demanding of no-till conditions with extreme accuracy.

The end wheel design makes this drill extremely maneuverable. Keeping all ground-working com-ponents in-line with the end wheels prevents openers from bulldozing or bridging when working in rolling terrain. The end wheels also act as stabilizers to hold the openers steady when seeding on slopes.

Excess debris is no problem for this unit. Opener and coulter stagger of 10 3/4" allows trash to flow evenly and freely. No-till coulters create a mini-seedbed allowing openers to concentrate on seed placement.

Planting depth adjustments are quick and easy with the "T"-handle depth control system. State of the art solid seed tubes ensure that the seed exits the chute with "zero motion drop" for ultimate seed placement accuracy. The optional Seed-Lok™ wheel then presses each seed into moist soil for optimum germination.

The improved straight-arm, solid stand opener design, combined with the cushioned press wheel provides maximum down pressure with less wear and tear.

The large, welded seed box holds up to 2.4 bushels per foot. Exclusive Great Plains fluted feed seed cups coupled with the 4-speed gearbox deliver outstanding accuracy in varying rates and seeding conditions.

Designed with safety in mind, the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill comes equipped with transport safety lights and a wider walkboard.

Accessories available with the 12' End Wheel No-Till drill include: folding markers, coil tine harrows, seed box agitator and small seeds attachment.

Add Fruit And Nuts For Variety Breads

Bread used to conjure visions of either whole wheat or white. But now, check out markets and bakeries, every imaginable — and even some unimaginable — breads are being sold.

This week's issue features breads made with fruits and nuts. Although a different flavor results, walnuts, pecans, and other nuts are interchangeable.

Most of the selections are quick breads, which means they are made using baking powder and baking soda instead of yeast. Try these recipes and experiment with some of your own by substituting a different fruit or bread as an ingredient.

STRAWBERRY-NUT LOAF

1 cup butter
1½ cups sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
1¼ teaspoon lemon extract
4 eggs, beaten
3 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon salt
3 teaspoons cream of tartar
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 cup strawberry jam
½ cup sour cream
½ cup chopped walnuts

Cream together butter, sugar, and extracts. Add eggs, beat well. Sift dry ingredients. Combine jam and sour cream. Add jam mixture and flour alternately to creamed mixture. Add walnuts. Pour into 2 greased loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes. Cool 10 minutes.

1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins

CHERRY WALNUT MUFFINS

1½ cups whole wheat flour
½ cup brown rice flour or whole grain cornmeal
½ cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup plain nonfat yogurt
1½ teaspoons vanilla extract
2 egg whites
¾ cup coarsely chopped, pitted frozen cherries

Topping:
1 tablespoon sugar
1 tablespoon finely ground walnuts

To make topping, combine the sugar and walnuts until crumbly. Combine the whole wheat flour, rice flour, sugar, baking powder, and baking soda. Stir to mix well. Add yogurt, vanilla, and egg whites. Stir just until the dry ingredients are moistened. Fold in the cherries.

Coat muffin cups with nonstick cooking spray; fill ¾ full with batter. Sprinkle the topping over the batter. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 to 18 minutes or until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center of a muffin comes out clean.

Remove the muffin tin from oven and allow it to set for 5 minutes before removing muffins. Serve warm or at room temperature. Yields 12 muffins.

1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped nuts
1 cup chopped, unpeeled apples

2 cups sugar
6 teaspoons baking powder
2 cups milk

1 cup chopped pecans
1 teaspoon salt

Combine dry ingredients; sift together into mixing bowl. Beat eggs with milk; add to dry ingredients, blending well. Add butter, chopped pecans and ground pecans. Divide dough evenly between two greased loaf pans. Let stand in warm place for 30 minutes. Meanwhile preheat oven to 325 degrees. Bake for 1¼ hours or until it tests done. Turn out onto wire racks to cool. Let stand 24 hours to improve flavors before slicing. Makes two loaves.

¾ cup unsalted dry roasted peanuts

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. In a large bowl, combine the flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Make a well in the center of the mixture. In a medium-size bowl, combine the eggs, milk, and butter; pour into the well and stir just until moistened. Gently stir in the peanuts. Spoon the mixture into greased muffin tins, filling three-fourths full.

Bake for about 15 minutes or until a wooden toothpick inserted in the center comes out clean.

Combine flour, baking powder, and salt; add to creamed mixture, stirring just until moistened. Stir in jam and pecans. Spoon into two greased and floured loaf pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 50 minutes or until tests done. Cool 10 minutes in pan. Invert on wire rack to finish cooling.

⅔ cup sugar
⅓ cup soft shortening
2 eggs

Stir in:
3 tablespoons sour milk or buttermilk
1 cup mashed bananas

Sift together and stir in:
2 cups sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt

Blend in:
½ cup chopped nuts

Pour into well-greased loaf pan. Let stand 20 minutes before baking. Bake until it tests done. Serve warm or cold.

If you are looking for a recipe but can't find it, send your recipe request to Lou Ann Good, Cook's Question Corner, in care of Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Sometimes we receive numerous answers to the same request, and cannot print each one.

Answers to recipe requests should be sent to the same address.

QUESTION — Andrienne Huffner, New Germanton, found a handwritten recipe for French Cake inside an old cookbook. The recipe intriques her but it doesn't list flour as an ingredient or instructions or a temperature for baking it. She thinks flour should be added. Does anyone have a recipe for French Cake.

QUESTION — Mary Wagner, McClure, would like a recipe for spinach with bacon, and hot vinegar, sugar, and water dressing that is not thick. Her mom called it scalded dressing.

QUESTION — Jan Novak, Center Valley, wants a recipe for a three-colored (pink, white, and green) watermelon cake. She believes it also has raisins in it to resemble the watermelon seeds. The cake was popular during the 1950s and 1960s.

QUESTION — Mrs. Geri Schmidt, Bedminster, would like a recipe for homemade flat thin pancakes, possibly called French pancakes.

QUESTION — Lois Zechman, Middleburg, would like a recipe for Miami Beach Birthday Cake, which is a 2-layer chocolate cake with a topping of graham cracker crumbs, butter, and chocolate chips, and sugar. White icing is between the layers and on the side of the cake.

QUESTION — Irene Panker, Mohnton, would like a recipe with complete instructions on how to make jellied pigs feet.

QUESION — Joyce Bachman, Jonestown, would like to know how to make black diamond steaks.

QUESTION — Diane Weiss, Breiningsville, writes that her mother tasted oatmeal raisin cookies at a bakery in Green Dragon that she really loves. The cookies are 4-inches wide and ½ -inch thick. Does anyone know how to make some that taste similar?

QUESTION — Jean Nestler, Halifax, would like a recipe for smoked sausage similar to that made by Herpack of Harrisburg during the 1970s.

QUESTION — Jean Nestler, Halifax, would like a recipe similar to Kraft's Dipping Sweet 'N Sour Sauce.

QUESTION — Alton Dickinson, Bethlehem, would like a recipe for Italian bread or rolls that is hand mixed and kneaded making 4-6 loaves.

QUESTION — Catherine Shearer, Greencastle, would like a recipe to make a pork roll.

QUESTION — A Kinzers reader would like a recipe for whole head sauerkraut. After it is fermented, one leaf is peeled off at a time whenever needed.

QUESTION — Lizzie Sensenig, Mifflinburg, would like a recipe for Magic Shell Chocolate Syrup, which gets hard when poured on ice cream.

QUESTION — Tina Forry, Palmyra, would like a recipe to make taco seasoning.

QUESTION — Lisa Collura, Holtwood, would like a recipe to make angel cream doughnuts.

QUESTION — Anna Schrader, Townsend, Del., would like a recipe for making jelly from canned juice. The can says it is 100 percent grape juice, but Anna said that it tastes sweet to her and does not appear deep purple like juice made from the grapes she picks from the vine.

QUESTION — Linda Ludwig, Reading, would like recipes for blueberry and cinnamon raisin bagels, and an apple tart with syrup topping like those sold by Ruppert's Bakery at the Leesport Auction years ago.

ANSWER — Freda McCune, Fishersville, Va., wanted sugar-free foods for diabetics. Thanks to B.Light, Lebanon, for sending recipes. We will print more sugar-free recipes if submitted.

Sugar-Free Peanut Butter Cookies

¼ cup mashed banana
½ cup peanut butter
2 large eggs
¾ teaspoon vanilla extract
2 tablespoons butter, softened
1 cup unbleached flour
½ teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup chopped peanuts

In a small bowl, blend flour, baking powder, and nutmeg. Set aside.

Cream together the bananas, peanut butter, eggs, vanilla, and butter. Add the flour mixture and beat well. Stir in chopped nuts. Drop by rounded teaspoonful on baking sheet sprayed with non-stick spray. Press flat with fork in criss-cross fashion, dipped in water occasionally to prevent sticking.

Bake at 375 degrees for 5 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on wire rack. Yields: approximately 3 dozen.

Sugar-Free Peanut Butter Surprise Muffins

¼ cup mashed ripe bananas
¼ cup peanut butter
2 large eggs
⅓ cup vegetable oil
1 cup milk
2 cups unbleached flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon baking soda
1 cup chopped peanuts
Filling:
Sugar-free jam or fruit butter

Beat together in a medium-sized bowl, mashed bananas, peanut butter, and eggs until well blended and creamy. Add oil and milk and beat. Measure in flour, baking powder, and baking soda. Beat. Stir in chopped peanuts. Spray muffin tins with vegetable spray. Fill each well ⅓ full, spoon ½ teaspoon jam or other filling into the center of each well and top with remaining batter, filling each well ⅔ full.

Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes or until browned. Cool. To serve, frost with jam if desired. Yields 12 muffins.

ANSWER — Jean Wilcox wanted a recipe for making homemade polish kielbasie made from fresh pork with mustard seeds. Thanks to Cheryl Pinkerton, Leonardstown, Md., who sent a recipe that her family uses whenever butchering hogs. The recipe was passed down by her great aunt Florence Slavinsky.

Homemade Polish Kielbasie

20 pounds ground pork
½ cup salt
⅓ cup black pepper
2-3 cloves garlic, chopped fine
⅓ cup mustard seed
1/6cup marjoram
Synthetic or cleaned sausage casings

Measure and mix together all ingredients in large bowl. Use stuffing attachment funnel or grinder to stuff seasoned meat into casings; twist into links. May be smoked before putting into sealed bags in freezer.

ANSWER — Bernice Poliskiewicz requested baked recipes without eggs because a family member had an egg allergy. Thanks to Mildred Hess, Myerstown, for sending a recipe for an egg substitute mixture.

Flaxseed Egg Substitute

½ cup flaxseed
1½ cups water

Grind flaxseed to a fine powder in a blender. Add water and blend on high for 2 minutes. You can use this right away, but it is best if chilled for one hour. Keep refrigerated up to two davs.

Using Flaxseed Mixture:
1 egg equals ¼ cup flax mixture
4 eggs equal 1 cup of flax mixture

Flaxseed mixture is tremendous for baking but it doesn't work in scrambled flax, lemon flax (meringue) pie or fried flax sandwiches. You can purchase flaxseeds in a health food store.

ANSWER — Betty Lou Gumble, Concord, sent in a recipe for old-fashioned buckwheat cakes, which her mother-in-law taught her to make and the family has been enjoying ever since.

Old-Fashioned Buckwheat Cakes

4 cups buckwheat flour
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon salt
4 cups water
2-ounce cake yeast dissolved in
1 cup water

Mix together ingredients in a 6- or 8-quart stainless steel pan. Let rise overnight in a warm place. In the morning, bake on hot griddle. Serve with pudding meat or sausage and syrup.

Put leftover batter in a cool place until evening, then add to the batter: ¾ cup sugar, 2 cups buckwheat, salt, and 2 cups water. Mix and let rise overnight in warm kitchen. The batter is ready to bake in the morning. These instructions can be followed every morning and evening, add more yeast about once a week.

ANSWER — Anna Martin, Denver, sent two recipes for Joyce Bupp, who had lost a recipe for an apple dessert with a buttery, cake-like topping.

Apple Pandowdy

1 quart sliced apples

½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoon butter
¾ cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla

Topping:
1 cup flour

Pare and slice apples. Place in the bottom of a large flat baking dish. To make syrup, combine sugar, flour, salt, vinegar, and water. Bring to a boil and cook for 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add butter and vanilla. Cool. Pour cooled syrup over apples. Make topping by cutting shortening into sifted dry ingredients. Add milk and stir only until mixture is wet. Drop topping by spoonfuls over apple mixture. Bake at 400 degrees for 35 minutes. Serve with rich milk or cream. Makes 6-8 servings.

Wash, pare, and slice apples. To make batter, beat egg yolks and add sugar. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with water and flavoring. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Melt butter and brown sugar in bottom of large, flat baking dish. Add sliced apples. Pour batter over top of apples. Bake at 350 degrees for 45 minutes. Turn upside down to serve. Serve with cream. Makes 8 servings.

When we were in Texas our daughter took several days off from her work. One evening she took me along to a meeting of the "Business and Professional Women's Club" in Sherman. I discovered that she is very active in the club and is helping to recruit new members. Last year Cindy won the state championship in a speak-off after winning at district level. Now she is to find judges for this year's event.

There was time for quite a bit of reading and I finished a book of motivational talks and even read some of Thoreau's "Walden Pond." Several times we ate out in unique restaurants. One had an antique shop on the same second floor level and those items always are interesting to me.

One day, when the temperature got up to 60 degrees, we took a hike in Eisenhower State Park. It borders Lake Texoma, which is 96,000 acres or the third largest reservoir in Texas. The shoreline had rocky bluffs and there were woodlands to walk through. Hundreds of shaded campsites and picnic areas were everywhere. Mistletoe with its white berries was growing on many of the trees. As we left the park we saw an armadillo cross the road.

The last day we got up at 5 a.m. for the 70 mile per hour drive to Dallas/Fort Worth Airport. People talk down food served on planes but I've always found it to be fine. Our breakfast was a filled omelet, ham, sliced orange, and a muffin plus coffee.

Our oldest daughter, who lives in New Jersey, met us and had her four-year-old son with her. They had trouble finding a parking space and finally ended up on the roof of the parking garage. We stopped for lunch on the way home — it was a long day.

Miniature Animals Provide Family Fun

LOU ANN GOOD

LAMPETER (Lancaster Co.) — Nine-year-old Nicole Martin loves animals, especially small ones.

Her place is almost like a petting zoo. With her parents, Glenda and Darrell Martin, and 11-year-old brother Dustin, Nicole helps care for miniature horses, miniature donkeys, a miniature pot belly pig, a Jersey heifer, pigmy goats, a Highland heifer, chickens, a chihuahua, and rabbits.

Glenda enjoys riding miniature donkeys and horses.

"We have two Jennys (female) and one Jack (male) donkeys," her mother said.

While donkeys have a reputation of being stubborn, Glenda maintains that donkeys are gentle with a mild temperament.

"If they don't want to come when you call, they won't," she said, "but we have no problem with kicking."

They have several miniature horses ideal for cart pulling and Nicole rides one of them.

"Miniature animals are much easier to handle and train," Nicole said.

The family finds training horses and donkeys quite easy.

"The secret is touching the animals a lot from the beginning. That way, they are tame long before trying to halter break or riding," Glenda said.

The same qualities of conformation standards upheld in larger animals are also desired in the smaller versions.

The shaggy honey-red coat and the horizontal horns of the Highland heifer is a novelty and serves as an educational conversational topic for friends who visit. Its long eyelashes and alert, inquisitive nature is a delight to watch.

Two years ago Darrell and Glenda Martin relunctantly sold their cow herd and moved from the farmhouse to a smaller house on the farm property owned by Darrell's parents.

Watching tenant and neighboring farmers did not quench the void they felt in caring for their own animals.

Glenda, especially, loves to pamper animals and missed the daily contact with the cows.

Although Darrell works as a salesman for a milking equipment company and Glenda waitresses at Hershey Farms, the couple decided they had time to raise some animals on the side.

They put up a horse barn with four stalls, which is actually a custom-building shed that is movable. Old calf hutches are used to shelter the goats, pot bellied pig, and chickens.

They rent about four acres, which is used for grazing and a big garden.

The family breeds the animals to sell privately. Although, they admitted to becoming so attached that it is difficult to part with one.

Glenda said, "My dream is to have a petting zoo and educate others about farming."

Of the increased popularity of miniature animals, Glenda said, "Once people see the miniature animals they fall in love with them."

Of all the animals, only the dog lives in the house. Dustin and Nicole take turns sleeping with Ting the dog.

Nine-year-old Nicole Martin loves animals, especially miniature donkeys and horses.

Dustin leads this pregnant mare that gave birth to a Jenny since the picture was taken.

Visitors to the farm delight in the antics of miniature animals such as these pigmy goats.

Why do pigs lie in mud?
Since March 1 is National Pig Day, Bob and I want to honor the snouted critter by busting the No. 1 myth of pigs: Pigs aren't dirty animals.
Anyone who's been told to "Clean up that pigsty of a room!" knows that most people think the word pigsty is used to describe a dirty place. And, since pigsty is another word for pigpen, I guess it's easy to understand why you might think pigs are dirty animals.
Here's the truth: Pigs prefer to keep themselves clean. The problem is that pigs can't sweat very much. Sweating helps you keep an even temperature. As sweat evaporates, it absorbs heat away from your body. Because hogs have very few sweat glands, they have to find other ways to keep cool. Pigs would much rather lounge in a clean pool of water, but that usually isn't an option. So, pigs lie in mud. The mud absorbs their bodies' excess heat. If pigs live inside barns where there isn't any mud, farmers make sure the temperature is just right for the future pork chops and bacon.
All in all, pigs get a bad rap about being messy. But once people learn the truth, they'll think pigs are full of smart stuff!
Scientifically yours, Twig

Nutritionists often refer to behavior modification when talking with obese clients because experts believe that behavior modification is an important part of any weight-control regimen. But what exactly does this mean?

Behavior modification means changing the way you feel about food and eating and the way you eat. For many people, it means adopting techniques that will help them eat less without feeling deprived. Modified behavior, healthful dieting and regular exercise are the three elements of a successful weight-control plan.

Before you can modify your behavior, you must be aware of what that behavior is. It is important to pay more attention to what you eat, when, and why. For instance, some people who claim to make do without any breakfast or lunch may be grabbing doughnuts and candy bars from vending machines.

Clients are encouraged to keep track of their eating patterns. As you become aware of bad habits, strive to substitute good eating habits for those bad ones. Choose one specific behavior that is a problem for you and work to change that one. Don't try to change too many things at once.

For instance, overeaters can choose one specific time when they know they are liable to snack between meals. Does watching TV mean curling up on the sofa with a big bowl of buttered popcorn? Try to eliminate that snack; or at least learn to eat popcorn without butter and salt poured over it.

Do you skip breakfast and then have a doughnut at 10 a.m. when your stomach growls? If you can't discipline yourself to eat a healthy breakfast, try packing a piece of fruit or whole-wheat bread into your briefcase or purse to substitute for less nourishing mid-morning snacks.

People who feel they have to clean their plate end up eating more than they really need or want, just out of habit. Try reducing your portion size or leaving a forkful of food on your plate, rather than eating everything.

Eat more slowly and put your knife and fork down between bites. It takes about 20 minutes for your brain to register the fact that you are full. Eating too quickly can encourage overeating.

If snacking is a problem, try to modify that behavior by deciding to eat only when seated at a table. You may enjoy food and still eat less if you emphasize pleasant meals with friends and family rather than eating on the run all the time.

Eating on the run does not count as exercise. Many people needing behavior modification for weight control should consider modifying their sedentary habits. Instead of watching an afternoon movie, try going for a walk. Or develop a habit of walking up and down stairs rather than always taking the elevator. Make it a practice to park at the far end of a parking lot so you will have to walk further to your office.

Whatever behavior you do decide to change, remember: the behavior modification you've adopted should be one that you can follow for the rest of your life. Any changes made must fit into your lifestyle, or they won't help with weight control in the long run. Choose one or more physical activities you like and can stick with. Behavior modification means modifying behavior, not changing it completely.

As the national representative of The Grange, Floyd Buffington will travel nationwide promoting the Grange he enthusiastically serves.

Buffington Travels The Nation In Support Of The Grange He Loves

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ELIZABETHVILLE (Dauphin Co.) — Floyd Buffington is one of six youth from across the United States who has been selected as a National Grange representative.

"It's a tremendous opportunity," the 22-year-old said of the appointment. "I will travel over the country to promote membership and a positive attitude toward the Grange."

Floyd, who said he has held every office in his Community Grange #2048, believes that of all the organizations of which he has been a member, Grange is the best.

"The Grange is unique because you are never too young or too old to be a member," he said.

"A lot of people aren't aware that the Grange started 4-H and FFA," he said.

Having been a member and a staunch supporter of all three, Buffington said that the Grange is the best because one can be a member forever and the Grange promotes family and members working together rather than individual achievements in competition with others.

The Grange has more members than FFA but not as many members attend the convention. Floyd would like to change that. He also would like to see more people become members of the Grange.

Many people have only a fuzzy idea of what the Grange stands for. According to Buffington, Grange members work together to advance the interest of agriculture and improve community life. With its national office located only three blocks from the White House, the Grange pushes legislation in favor of agriculture and families.

The Grange promotes deaf awareness and provides telecommunication devices for the deaf. Grangers work together to improve their own and their neighbors' quality of living through programs of community service and personal betterment. Benefits include a credit union, insurance, and checking accounts for members.

Some people believe that the Grange is a secret organization with secret passwords.

Floyd explained that the reason behind that assumption applied to the Grange during its formulative stages.

"After the Civil War, President Lincoln knew that America could only be as strong as farming. Because the railroads had a monopoly, they were overpricing farmers.

"The Grange, which means community, was formed to unite together to make farming a viable business. Infiltrators who wanted to protect the railroad monopolies and abolish farmers from uniting tried to attend Grange meetings. A secret word or knock was devised to discern who was a legitimate member and who wasn't."

In keeping with their strong belief in God and country, each Grange meeting is opened with prayer and a salute to the flag.

Buffington believes the Grange has history of which to be proud. When the Grange was founded, it had the distinction of being the first organizaion to have offices for women.

"Did you know that this is the 100th anniversary of Rural Free Delivery that was started by the Grange?" said Buffington, who likes to throw in tidbits of information about Grange history to whomever he is speaking.

Floyd joined the Grange 10 years ago. Through his involvement, his parents were inspired to become active in the Grange. Today, Floyd's father is the Grange master and his mother is a lecturer.

In addition to many county, state and national awards, Floyd also received the national Spirit of Grange Award and placed twice in national public speaking competition.

Floyd is a senior at Delaware Valley College, where he is majoring in agricultural education to become an FFA adviser or a county extension agent. He hopes to obtain a job near enough to commute from the family farm.

"Our area is called Little Lancaster because the Amish are moving in," he said. Buffington said that the area is zoned agriculture and protected from development.

His parents, Donald and Betty Buffington, operate their 87-acre farm, which has been in the family for three generations. They raise 2,500 hogs and crops. Floyd also raises eight-head of cattle on the farm.

So far, Floyd is scheduled to speak to Grange gatherings in Illinois, Michigan, California, and a three-day workshop in Pennsylvania.

Those interested in knowing more about the Grange should contact the National Grange located at 1616 N.W., Washington, DC 20006. Telephone number is (202) 628-3507.

After graduating from Delaware Valley College, Floyd Buffington plans to return to the family farm, which has been in the family for three generations.

Make Your House Your Home

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — Spring housecleaning often inspires real house cleaning: those curtains really are too old to rehang after washing, those walls really do need a fresh look. Or maybe your critical appraisal reveals that your home portrays a sterile, unwelcoming aura.

Sometimes changes don't require a large outlay of money, only the know-how of how to tie everything together.

Kathy Shenk and Carol Mylin sychronize their talents to give homes personality and vibrancy.

Carol, whose husband Jay Mylin is president of Lancaster DHIA, began a floral designing business about 10 years ago. Over the years, she has been asked again and again to come to homes to design the right arrangement for a specific spot.

She did, but often found that people needed a lot more interior decorating touches than a few floral arrangements.

With an eye for color and design, Carol offered a few suggestions for decorating, but she said, "I really wasn't trained for interior design."

When a best friend's daughter graduated from the Pennsylvania School of Art and Design with a degree in interior design, the pair started comparing notes.

"We found we had a lot in common and worked well together," Carol said.

Carol, who owns a shop called Carol's Creations, created a nook in her shop for Kathy's fledgling interior design business, called Interior Fancies.

Together or individually, the two go out on house calls.

In creating attractive interiors, Kathy uses items the homeowner has to the fullest advantage. Here the picture on the wall is actually an antique embroidered pillow cover that Cathy had framed. The matching bedspread and window sways are accented with throw pillows.

"We find there is a real need for accessoring in homes. Even if a decorator helps a client select furniture, often little attention has been paid to detail and the house can look as empty as a barn," Carol said.

"We make your house your home," Kathy promises.

The two women are diligent to make customers' homes reflect the tastes of the homeowners.

"People in this area are often surprised that Kathy and Carol are not limited to country decor.

"We specialize in custom designs that include country, traditional, oriental, and contemporary," Kathy said.

Kathy charges $20 an hour, but that fee is waived depending upon the amount of services ordered — such as window treatments or furniture.

Some people are hesitant to use a decorator because of the expense. But Kathy said, "Mistakes are costly. If you do it wrong, it costs more money."

On her initial visit to a client's home, Kathy takes pictures and measurements. She discusses likes and dislikes with the owner to determine preferred style and interests.

She likes to see whatever accessories are already on hand and, if desired, will incorporate them into the overall decorating scheme.

"During the initial house call, I get a feel for the home. Then I do research and come back with fabric swatches and accessory pieces," she said.

Kathy will do as much or as little as the homeowner prefers.

"Some people want me to do everything — selecting furniture, window treatments, and accessories. Others like to help choose items," Kathy said.

Carol designs flower arrangements and sells high quality silk plants and trees.

At Carol's Creations, wreaths, swags, dried and silk arrangements are ready for pick up, but Carol is always eager to arrange custom designs to match draperies, wallpaper, and upholstery.

The shop is located at 1592 Old Line Rd., in Manheim. Directions: Route 72 N. in Manheim, turn left onto Colebrook Street. Carol's Creations is located 2½ miles on the right. The floral design store is open Friday and Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. or by appointment. Call (717) 664-2834 for more information on either Carol's Creations or Interior Fancies.

Carol Mylin, standing, and Kathy Shenk combine their talents "to make your house your home." Carol arranges the floral designs to coordinate with furnishings.

Linda Garman, a floral designer for Carol's creations, preserves flowers from bridal bouquets to arrange into a wreath for the wall.

In this home, Kathy suggested sponge painting the walls a muted rose. Old photographs are edged with crocheted lace and framed in double glass. Heirloom dishes are arranged and the window treatment and tablecloth pull together the accent colors.

Fraud Alert

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Consumers should beware of misleading and exaggerated advertising claims about grass seed as they prepare for the spring gardening season, according to Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius.

"Certain advertisements for mail order grass seeds promise sensational results and charge exorbitant prices," Brosius said. "Remember, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is. Consumers need to stay alert for products which may not live up to the claims of the advertisting."

Brosius suggested that consumers check with reputable dealers before purchasing grass seed, comparing packaging labels to be sure they are getting the most appropriate seed for their particular lawn. There are many improved varieties available on the market, and some less expensive seeds may provide the same results as those being sold at higher prices.

Most exaggerated advertising claims are for seeds only available by mail, but some retail stores carry these products.

Windowsill Herb Garden

This is the first article in a series on growing herbs. Gardeners find growing fresh herbs a rite of spring.

Start your culinary herbs indoors in March. Herb favorties include chives, basil, oregano, thyme, rosemary and parsley.

Grow your herbs from seeds in separate containers. Transplant them into a window box planter when they have two or more sets of leaves. Follow the directions on the seed packs.

Herbs love sunlight. Choose a window with bright sunlight from the south, east or west window. Good light quality gives most herbs a rich flavor. Herbs can also be grown under fluorescent lights. Use a growlight fixture with one cool-white and one warm-white tube. Put your lights on a timer for 12-16 hours a day. Keep the lights six inches above the plants.

Choose a plastic, clay or ceramic window box with holes in the bottom. Before adding the potting soil add extra drainage by putting an inch of clean pebbles or gravel in the bottom. Keep a saucer or tray under the window box.

Garden soil is not good for a window box. A potting soil mix that has equal parts of peat moss and vermiculite or perlite works well. Fill the box with moist potting soil to within one inch of the top. Dig a small hole for each transplant. Loosen the roots. Fill soil around each transplant, press down on the soil firmly. Water well.

Keep your herbs healthy by watering when the soil gets dry on top., water until excess water drains out into the tray. Keep the plants pinched back. Use your homegrown herbs in your favorite recipes. Take some clues from supermarket spice shelves and dried herb displays in gift shops. Read you favorite cookbooks. For beginners, choose from strong herbs such as winter savory, rosemary and sage. Other herbs with a strong scent include sweet basil, dill, mint, sweet marjoram, tarragon, and thyme. Herbs for blending include chives, parsley and summer savory.

As your interest and needs increase, you can add herbs to your window box for variety. Annuals, include anise, basil, chervil, coriander, dill, summer savory. Biennials include caraway and parsley. Perennials include chives, fennel, lovage, marjoram, mint, tarragon, thyme, winter savory.

For planting out in the garden late this spring, select a sunny area four feet wide and up to 20 feet long for a kitchen herb garden. Individual 12 18-inch plots should be adequate for separate herbs.

Good drainage is important for all herbs. If you need to improve the drainage in your garden, you will have to modify the soil by adding composted materials, such as well-rotted manure, straw-based manures, shredded leaves, well-rotted brush, or other matter.

You ask You answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know whom to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

There's no need to send a SASE. If we receive an answer to your question, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not published your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Terry Lerew, Gardners, wants information regarding minature bottle gourds or tiny birdhouse gourds. They need to be 1-4-inches in size. Would like an inexpensive source to buy those already dried and cleaned or a source for seeds and information on how to do it herself.

QUESTION — Grace Bachtel would like to know where she can obtain the words and music for the songs, "In the Little Red School House," and one in which all or most of the names of 48 states are included.

QUESTION — Dale Leighow would like to find some seed from an old corn called "8 Row Yellow." It is a small diameter cob about 8-10-inches long. The cob is white and every ear had only 8 rows of kernels. The kernel is oval-shaped—not like the wedge shaped kernels of today's corn. It was used many years ago to grind into cornmeal. Dale wants to be contacted directly at R.R.3, Box 368, Catawissa, PA 17820-9581, because he wants to plant 25-30 kernels this spring.

QUESTION — Barbara Randall, Holcomb, N.Y., would like to find old Red Rose Tea animals that had been offered as premiums along with the tea bags for many years. Wade England is printed on the base.

QUESTION — Sara Orr, Rising Sun, Md., would like to know where she can buy braided rugs and runners.

QUESTION — John Randall, Holcomb, N.Y., lost the ad in which someone advertised a portable scales with 5,000 # capacity in this paper in January.

QUESTION — B.L. Van Orden, P.O. Box 256, Honeoye, NY 14471 would like to find other quilters to trade patchwork squares for a friendship quilt.

QUESTION — Josephine Shoemaker, Chambersburg, wants the words to an old poem, "The River," which Ida Risser referred to in her column recently. Ida said that she knows only the words: "for men my come and men may go, but I go on forever."

QUESTION — Hazel Stahle, Dover, would like to words to the poem, "Winken, Blinken, and Nod." She also would like the words to another poem that she doesn't know the name. The words she remembers go "Then his little daughter whispered, As she took his icy hand; Isn't God upon the water, Just the same as on the land?"

QUESTION — Mrs. Benjamin Stoltzfus, Bird-in-Hand, wants the address or telephone number for a company called Dantex Trend, which sells lace.

QUESTION — Ronald Peters, Port Trevorton, would like to know how to milk feed a pumpkin.

QUESTION — John Shirk, Leola, would like to know where to buy a new or used grain mill and a Bosch mixer.

QUESTION — A Mt. Joy reader would like to know a bit about Norman Rockwell. She has a few collector's glasses, one dated Nov. 21, 1925, that have a painted picture of children and Norman Rockwell and the Saturday Evening Post. What is the value of the glasses?

QUESTION — Margie Robbins, Salmon, ID, is searching for a pattern for an antebellum bed made from milk filter discs and colorful yarn, which was made in the 1950s-1960s. Please contact her at Rt. 1, Box 87, Salmon, ID 83467.

Apple Marketing Program Schedules Referendum

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Charles C. Brosius is urging apple growers to vote in a referendum to change the rate of assessment to growers under the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program.

The program promotes the sale of Pennsylvania-grown apples and apple products through advertising and sale displays, and by serving as the industry spokesperson.

"Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in apple production," Brosius said. "With increased resources, the Apple Marketing Program can work to enter new markets, including export markets."

The referendum proposes to change the rate of assessment beginning with the 1996-97 marketing season to 12 cents per bushesl of apples sold for fresh market use and six cents per hundred pounds of apples sold or accepted for processing. Beginning with the 2000-01 marketing season, the proposed rate of assessment would increase to 15 cents per bushel of apples sold for fresh market use and eight cents per hundred pounds of apples sold or accepted for processing.

The proposed amendment applies to all apple growers in the Commonwealth with five hundred or more apple trees of all ages.

The referendum period will begin on March 25, 1996 and will end at 4 p.m. on April 8, 1996. Ballots may be mailed or delivered to the Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Market Development, Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110-9408.

Ballots will be sent to growers who were assessed through the program in 1995. For more information or to receive a ballot, contact the Bureau of Market Development, telephone (717) 787-2376.

ANSWER — Regina Scheetz, Danville, wanted the words to the old Christmas poem, "Annie And Willie's Prayer." Thanks to Mrs. Daniel Yoder, Lewistown, for sending the words.

Annie And Willie's Prayer

"T'was the eve before Christmas, "Good night," had been said,
And Annie and Willie had crept into bed;
There were tears on their pillows, and tears in their eyes,
And each little bosom was heaving with sighs,
For tonight their stern father's command had been given
That they should retire precisely at seven
Instead of at eight—for they troubled him more
With questions unheard of than ever before:
He had told them he thought this delusion a sin,
No such creature as Santa Claus ever had been
And he hoped, after this, he should never more hear
How he scrambled down chimneys with presents each year,
And this was the reason that two little heads
So restlessly tossed on their soft, downy beds.
Eight, nine, and the clock on the steeple tolled ten,
Not a word had been spoken by either till then,
When Willie's sad face from the blanket did peep,
And whispered, "Dear Annie, is 'ou fast as'eep?"
"Why no, brother Willie," a sweet voice replies,
"I've long tried in vain, but I can't shut my eyes,
For somehow it makes me so sorry because
Dear Papa had said there is no Santa Claus.
Now we know there is, and it can't be denied
For he came every year before Mamma died;
But, then, I've been thinking that she used to pray,
And God would hear everything mamma would say,
And maybe she asked him to send Santa Claus here
With that sackful of presents he brought every year."
"Well, why tan't we p'ay dest as mamma did den,
And ask Dod to send him with p'esents aden?"
"I've been thinking so too," and without a word more
Four little bare feet bounded out on the floor,
And four little knees the soft carpet pressed,
And two tiny hands were clasped close to each breast.
"Now, Willie, you know we must firmly believe
That the presents we ask for we're surely receive;
You must wait very still till I say the 'Amen,'
And by that you will know that your turn has come then."
"Dear Jesus, look down on my brother and me,
And grant us the favor we are asking of thee.
I want a wax dolly, a teaset, and ring,
And an ebony workbox that shuts with a spring.
Bless papa, dear Jesus, and cause him to see
That Santa Claus loves us as much as does he;
Don't let him get fretful and angry again
At dear brother Willie and Annie, Amen."
"Please, Desus, 'et Santa Taus tum down tonight,
And b'ing us some p'esents before it is light;
I want he should div' me a nice 'ittie s'ed,
With bright shinin' 'unners, and all painted red;
A box full of tandy, a book, and a toy,
Amen, and then, Desus. I'll be a dood boy."
Their prayers being ended, they raised up their heads,
With hearts light and cheerful, again sought their beds.
They were lost soon in slumber, both peaceful and deep,
And with fairies in dreamland were roaming in sleep.

Eight, nine, and the little French clock had struck ten,
Ere the father had through of his children again;
He seems now to hear Annie's half-suppressed sighs,
And to see the big tears stand in Willie's blue eyes.
"I was harsh with my darlings," he mentally said,
"And should not have sent them so early to bed;
But then I was troubled; my feelings found vent,
But of course they've forgotten their troubles ere this,
And that I denied them the thrice-asked-for kiss.

But, just to make sure, I'll go up to their door,
For I never spoke harsh to my darlings before."
So saying, he softly ascended the stairs,
And arrived at the door to hear both of their prayers;
His Annie's 'Bless papa" drew forth the big tears,
And Willie's grave promise fell sweet on his ears.
"Strange—strange—I'd forgotten," said he with a sigh,
"How I longed when a child to have Christmas draw nigh."
"I'll atone for my harshness," he inwardly said,
"By answering their prayers ere I sleep in my bed."
Then he turned to the stairs and softly went down,
Threw off velvet slippers and silk dressing gown,
Donned hat, coat, and boots, and was out in the street,
A millionaire facing the cold, driving sleet!
Nor stopped he until he had bought everything
From the box full of candy to the tiny gold ring:
Indeed, he kept adding so much to his store,
That the various presents outnumbered a score.
Then homeward he turned. When his holiday load,
With Aunt Mary's help, in the nursery was stowed.
Miss Dolly was seated beneath a pine tree,
By the side of a table spread out for her tea;
a workbox well-fitted in the center was laid,
And on it the ring for which Annie had prayed,
A soldier in uniform stood by a sled
"With bright shining runners, and all painted red."
There were balls, dogs, and horses, books pleasing to see,
And birds of all colors were perched in the tree!
While Santa Claus, laughing, stood up in the top,
As if getting ready more presents to drop.
And as the fond father the picture surveyed,
He thought for his trouble he had amply been paid,
And he said to himself, as he brushed off a tear,
"I'm happier tonight than I've been for a year;
I've enjoyed more pure pleasure than ever before;
What care I if bank stock falls ten percent more!
Hereafter I'll make it a rule, I believe,
To have Santa Claus visit us each Christmas Eve."
So thinking, he gently extinguished the light,
And, tripping downstairs, retired for the night.

As soon as the beams of the bright morning sun
Put the darkness to flight, and the stars one by one,
Four little blue eyes out of sleep opened wide,
And at the same moment the presents espied;
Then out of their beds they sprang with a bound,
And the very gifts prayed for were all of them found.
They laughed and they cried, in their innocent glee,
And shouted for papa to come quick and see
What presents old Santa Claus brought in the night
(Just the things that they wanted) and left before light;
"And now," added Annie, in a voice soft and low
"You'll believe there's a Santa Claus, Papa, I know;"
While dear little Willie climbed up on his knee,
Determined no secret between them should be,
And told in soft whispers how Annie had said
That their dear, blessed mamma, so long ago dead,
Used to kneel down by the side of her chair,
And that God up in heaven had answered her prayer.
"Den we dot up and prayed dust well as we tould,
And Dod answered our prayers: now wasn't he dood?"
"I should say that He was, if He sent you all these,
And knew just what presents my children would please.
"Well, well, let him think so, the dear little elf,
'T'would be cruel to tell him I did it myself.")

Blind father! Who caused your stern heart to relent,
And the hasty words spoken so soon to repent?
'T'was the Being who bade you steal softly upstairs,

NFU President Criticizes Farm Bill

CINCINNATI, Ohio — National Farmers Union (NFU) President Leland Swenson criticized the farm bill offered by Congress and highlighted his organization's role in effecting legislation critical to the survival of family farm agriculture during NFU's 94th anniversary convention here.

"I hope we will remember 1995 as the year the effort and leadership of Farmers Union members made a difference," Swenson said. His comments were addressed to the 800 Farmers Union members tonight during an awards banquet.

"Real farmers don't want welfare," said Swenson. "Real farmers want to get their income from the market, which can be done by removing the caps on loan rates."

Swenson was critical of the closed-door approach to writing the farm bill and of Congress' unwillingness to consider alternatives, noting that the 1995 Congress enacted fewer pieces of legislation than any Congress since World War II. "If handing out $36 million regardless of prices and regardless of weather conditions like we did in the 1980's to benefit mostly large operators, that's not reform," he said.

Swenson also listed the halt of legislation that would have gutted ethanol industry incentives, attention to the livestock concentration issue, improvements in the telecommunications bill and President Bill Clinton's veto of the 1996 budget bill as some of NFU's recent legislative accomplishments. Swenson pointed out that the president had specified inadequate agricultural provisions as one of the reasons he decided to veto the budget bill.

While acknowledging the frustration that Farmers Union members feel in the wake of congressional passage of the Agriculture Marketing Transition Act, he commended them for impacting the debate. "Rather than feeling despair, we must recognize that Farmers Union has succeeded at articulating the concerns with Congress' Freedom to Farm legislation, which are now beginning to be discussed by others." Swenson noted a survey by Texas A&M University, which predicts that most moderate-sized farming operations will go out of business under Congress' farm bill.

The NFU president reminded members of another area where NFU had provided similar leadership. "We were the only ones who didn't sell out on the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA). We're the only ones who still have credibility for having addressed the issues that we face today as a result of adopting NAFTA and the GATT in this country," said Swenson.

The U.S. trade balance with Mexico has gone from a $2 billion surplus in 1994 to a $15 billion deficit today.

Ag Magazine Showcases Area Farmer

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Melvin Lesher of Chambersburg recently shared his thoughts on farming with the editors of Farm Forum(R) magazine, a national agricultural magazine published by Case Corporation on behalf of Case IH dealers.

The article on Lesher appeared in the spring issue distributed to farmers across Pennsylvania and neighboring states.

According to the article, Lesher is general manager of the family egg farm started by his grandmother in 1917. Today, five Lesher families run an egg business that includes caring for 225,000 layers; grading, packaging and marketing eggs; growing their own feed; and raising their own pullets.

"It's our goal to produce one dozen large eggs per three pounds of feed," Lesher told Farm Forum, adding that while management decisions center on efficiency, quality is the priority. "Our customers have come to expect a good product from us." Every carton shipped from the farm to local grocers carries the Lesher name.

Quality control is integral to all aspects of the operation, according to the article. Layers are kept in production for 56 weeks, then sold to a slaughterhouse. "If we keep birds past that age, we don't get as good of a shell," Lesher said.

The article noted that the Leshers use least-cost computer programs to help identify where expenses can be cut. Investments, such as a new grader that goes through two dozen eggs a second, improve productivity and keep pace with technology. Three Case IH Magnum(TM) tractors and two Case IH Axial-Flow(R) combines handle planting and harvesting 2,000 acres of soybeans and corn.

Farm Forum is a national magazine, with six regional editions, published quarterly by Case Corporation on behalf of Case IH dealers.

Pfizer Animal Health Hosts National FFA Officers

EXTON (Chester Co.) — National and Pennsylvania FFA officers visited Pfizer Animal Health North American Region headquarters recently to learn firsthand about the animal health industry.

The FFA officers included Joe Caffee of Geneva, Ind., National FFA vice president, central region; Darla Herr of Hershey, Pa., state president, Pennsylvania FFA Association; Joshua Troxell of Mohnton, Pa., Pennsylvania FFA Association state reporter; and Glenn Sims, senior regional director, National FFA Foundation, Madison, Wis.

The group met for an informal discussion with Bob Mullen, Pfizer Animal Health North American region president; Chris Cashman, vice president, livestock division; and Laura Devlin, director, marketing services and public relations. They also visited with directors of livestock division business teams that work with cattle, swine, and poultry markets.

Each year the National FFA officers visit a variety of business and industry executives from leading companies. The visits are designed to be educational, with corporate executives sharing information, thoughts, and concerns relating to the company with the FFA officers. The visits are part of a complete training program during which FFA's national officers take a year from their college studies. In addition to meeting with business executives throughout the U.S., the officers spend two weeks in Washington, D.C., meeting with USDA officials and congressional leaders and take 10-day International Agribusiness Tour — this year to Japan.

Pfizer Animal Health supports the National FFA Foundation in a variety of ways by sponsoring swine production proficiency awards recognizing FFA members who, as part of their supervised agricultural experience, raise swine for breeding or commercial sales. The company also sponsors an "Ideas Unlimited" contest for vocational agricultural teachers and career planning programs for post-secondary agricultural students interested in careers in animal production and animal science.

CONTINUOUS CUTTING

The Case International 8312 disc mower conditioner just keeps on cutting – no matter what it encounters. Tangled undergrowth, rodent mounds, ant hills or heavy hay are no match for the heat-treated, high-speed rotary discs at the heart of the 8312.

A center pivot tongue lets you cut a full 12-foot swath in either direction and maneuver around obstacles. Lay down a quick-drying swath or fluffy windrow and, depending on your crop, conditioning rolls can be quickly adjusted for optimum drying.

If continuous cutting with a center pivot machine is important to you, stop in and see the Case International 8312.

SELECTING A JUDGE FOR A JUNIOR LIVESTOCK SHOW

Many times throughout the year, I receive requests to judge junior livestock shows or to recommend someone for the job.

When selecting a judge for a junior livestock show, there are several things to consider.

I have compiled an unofficial quiz that should test your ability to select a judge for a junior livestock show.

In the list below, assign the numbers one (1) through six (6) to the characteristics given. The most important attributes of a judge of a junior livestock show should receive a "1," and the least important consideration should receive a "6."

Considerations And Attributes Of Judge For A Junior Livestock Show

____ A. Age and experience
____ B. Honesty, integrity and objectivity
____ C. Fee and expenses
____ D. Ability to work with youth and excellent communication skills
____ E. Competency and consistency
____ F. Breeder, feeder, order buyer, packer, extension agent, etc.

What follows is my rank-order, from least important to most important, for the given attributes desired in a judge of a junior livestock show.

6 C. Fee and expenses. When you add the cumulative value of the animals being shown, the time youngsters spent caring for their animals, the effort put forth by volunteer leaders and fair officials, and the monetary value of the entire educational experience, the amount of money you spend for a quality judge amounts to "pennies on the dollar."

Although a judge's fee and expenses may be a consideration, remember, you usually get what you pay for! If this was your number one priority, please let someone else secure the judge for your show.

5 F. Breeder, feeder, order buyer, packer, extension agent, etc. Just because someone has a particular occupation does not ensure that they are competent and will be consistent. Actually, some people with these titles and occupations have never judged a show, have no desire to judge a show, and can do more harm than good for the ideals of junior livestock projects. Likewise, there are many good people in these types of positions who are excellent judges, not because of title or occupation, but due to their abilities in the next four criteria listed.

4 A. Age and experience. Obviously, this item follows the concepts covered in # 5 F, with the notable exception of experience. Age and experience can overcome several shortcomings, but age and experience do not guarantee that the next three criteria will be fulfilled. I have seen judges of all ages and varying degrees of experience judge junior shows with dramatically different levels of success. Some people are excellent judges of livestock, but have obvious difficulty working with young people. These people are more ideally suited for judging open shows.

3 E. Competency and consistency. Competency and consistency are the next factors to consider when securing a judge. I have heard a lot of parents, friends, and spectators at junior livestocks shows say, "He didn't place them the way I would have placed them!" This statement in and of itself is ridiculous. If you wanted the livestock to be placed the way you would have placed them, you should have judged the show. Most people look for someone who will place the animals like they would. This is a vital error!

Try to hire someone that has been on a judging team, or who has livestock judging experience, and can discern differences among animals. The individual should be consistent and current on the species of livestock being judged.

The most important aspect of all judging activities is consistency. A judge may not place the animals the way you would have placed them, but if the judge has placed them consistently, the same way, in every class throughout the day, he is far better than most judges. It is very hard to argue with consistency!

Remember, too, that some smaller livestock shows do not allow a judge to be consistent due to the fact that not every class in a show will have the type and kind of animal that the judge is looking for. But in bigger shows, with larger numbers of animals exhibited in each class, it is possible to evaluate the consistency of a judge.

2 D. Ability to work with youth and excellent communication skills. A judge must remember that there is a wide range of expertise in the ring each time. Making the participant feel that they have had the judge's attention for a short period of time is very important. Keeping the youth in mind first, a judge must be able to speak into the microphone in a professional manner. When speaking, the "ideal" junior livestock show judge should be able to tell why the placings were made the way they were and speak in a manner so that every participant can leave the ring with their head held high. By giving constructive criticism to each participant, the judge can stimulate the young people to work even harder and improve.

#1 B. Honesty, integrity, and objectivity. The person you hire should give his/her honest opinion. Note the words "hire" and "opinion." You hire judges for their time and opinion, and they should receive due compensation. Also remember, a judge's final decisions may not agree with yours. Whether you agree, disagree, or don't care, one must respect a person's honest opinion.

Integrity is essential in a judge. Integrity is utter sincerity, honesty, and adherence to a code of values.

Also, a judge must be objective. Very rarely, if ever, will you be able to hire a judge who doesn't know any of the exhibitors.

The bottom-line philosophy of most successful judges is one of impartiality and total objectivity. One example of this philosophy for judging is to ask yourself a few questions about the person whom you would like to have judge the junior show. Basically, "If the judge's mother was showing the best pig in a class, would the judge place her first?" Alternatively, and probably more importantly, "If the judge's mother was showing the worst pig in a class, would the judge place her last?" If you answered "yes" to both of these questions about the prospective judge, then objectivity of the judge should not be a problem.

The last thing you want is a judge that brings to the showring significant biases. Most judges realize that when a person loses their honesty, integrity and objectivity, they have lost everything.

By taking all of these factors and putting them into one person, you have an extremely qualified junior livestock judge. You may not find all of the qualities in one person, but now you have a basis for establishing priorities for qualities needed in your junior show judges. When in doubt about the qualifications, experience or abilities of a certain judge with a particular species, ask questions and obtain references. Many livestock breeders, producers and exhibitors have opinions on judges under whom they have shown.

Hopefully, these opinions are unbiased, but talking with several people should reduce any individual bias that may be present, to see if a general concensus develops among exhibitors. A single opinion of a certain judge on a particular day is a very poor "measuring stick" by which to gauge a person's abilities and effectiveness as a judge of junior ivestock shows.

Remember, the way a judge placed the livestock will be forgotten long before the manner in which he worked with the youngsters to make their experiences enjoyable and educational.

JUST BECAUSE IT SNOWS IN MARCH DOESN'T MEAN SUMMER ISN'T COMING

W. D. Weaver, Jr.
Professor & Head
Dept. of Poultry Science

As I look out my office window and watch the snow fall outside and hear the weather forecaster predict that it could accumulate a foot or more before the storm passes, it is hard for me to imagine that possible summer heat waves are no more than three months away.

We need only refer back to last summer to realize how devastating a heat wave can be to poultry. This was never more evident than last July 15 when temperatures in central Pennsylvania reached 100 degrees F and killed several million birds.

The first thing producers, especially of meat-type chickens and turkeys, must realize is that birds, through genetic selection for rapid growth, become less tolerant of heat each year. For example, with broilers it takes approximately one day less growing time each year to reach a specific body weight. In other words, as straight run broilers today will weight 4.5 pounds in six weeks, 15 years ago it would have required eight weeks to reach a similar body weight.

Most of this gain has been accomplished through genetic selection; however, normally when mother nature allows for gains in one area (in this case more rapid growth), she takes away something in another area (fitness). Fitness is a broad category, but for the purpose of this discussion fitness is defined as the ability of birds to tolerate heat in the upper range of their thermoneutral zone.

Unfortunately, because of the anticipated continued gains in growth rate, meat-type birds will become less tolerant to heat stress each summer. Practically, this means that houses and systems used to produce birds efficiently five or even two years ago may not be adequate today.

This article will address things to consider when preparing houses and birds for hot weather.

Ventilation

When considering hot weather as summer ventilation, maximum fan capacity is critical. This capacity can be divided into two categories: design capacity and operating capacity. Design capacity under negative pressure applications should provide a minimum of 1.25 cfm per pound of body weight for meat-type birds and 1.5 cfm per pound of body weight for commercial layers.

Fan capacities must be calculated at the proper static pressure, which during hot weather is normally .05 inches water column (WC). The capacity must also take into account any losses associated with fan shutters, etc.

Operating capacity/efficiency is associated with such things as voltage drops and its effect on fan speed, worn and loose belts, dirty and worn shutters, worn and poorly lubricated bearings, and dirty safety screens. Any one of these deficiencies can significantly reduce fan operating capacity.

Air inlets must also be properly designed to allow the desired amount of air to enter the house under maximum fan capacity. Remember, static pressure should be no more than .05 inches WC when all fans are operating. Generally, inlets should also be designed to direct air over the birds when foggers are not used, and directly across the room in combination with foggers.

A system known as tunnel ventilation is used extensively in broiler houses. This system locates all fans in one end of the house and allows all the air to enter at the other end of the house. As the exhaust fans are operated, a "tunnel" of air passes down through the house.

Most of these houses are designed to create a tunnel air speed of approximately 400 feet per minute. In a house that is 48 feet wide with a 10 foot high ceiling, a capacity of 192,000 cfm is needed, requiring 9 to 10, 48-inch fans.

Evaporative Cooling

Evaporative cooling works on the principle of energy (heat) being required to convert water from a liquid to a vapor; specifically, 8,747 btu for each gallon of water. Therefore, if temperature of the outside air (that is, 95 degrees F), the quantity of outside air entering the poultry house via fans (that is, 192,000 cfm), the reduction in desired inside temperature (that is, 10 degrees F), and heat being produced by the birds (15 btu/pound) is known, one can calculate the amount of evaporating water needed to cool the poultry house.

Under normal conditions in a broiler house, a quantity of approximately nine gallons per hour per 1,000 square feet of floor space is required to accomplish a 10 degrees F drop in temperature.

What About Withdrawing Feed?

The heat produced by digestion in fast growing and egg producing birds is significant. Therefore, when done properly (4 to 5 hours prior to the hot part of the day), removing feed for several hours can reduce heat stress. However, producers must realize that anytime feed is withdrawn, there is a potential for loss of growth and egg production.

High temperatures can be devastating to chickens and in fewer cases turkeys. When realizing that modern poultry will become evermore susceptible to heat stresses brought about by genetic selection for high growth rates and rates of egg production, producers must continually upgrade and maintain their houses to offset the inability of the birds to cope with high ambient temperatures.

National Shorthorn Show Has 90 Exhibitors

DENVER, Colo. — The 90th running of the National Western Stock Show here was host to the National Shorthorn Show and American Shorthorn Association's Annual Meeting.

More than 200 head of bulls and females were exhibited by 90 exhibitors and owners from 16 states and three Canadian provinces. This made for the largest National Western Shorthorn Show in recent memory

The judges for this year's national were head judge, Jim Gillooly of Colbert Farms, Washington, Ind., and the associate judge, Mr. Brett Barber, herdsman at Michigan State University, East Lansing, Mich.

In the very competitive and exciting 68-head bull show, the winner was MSF Equity 43 x, owned and exhibited by Schrag Shorthorn Farms, Marian, SD, and Cagwin Farms, Virginia, Ill. He is a powerful, March '94, red with white marks, polled son of MSF Keystone 253 x out of the impressive dam, MSF Duchess Queen 8572 x. He had earlier been named Junior Champion Bull. His impressive show day stats were: weight — 2,033 pounds; WDA — 3.11 pounds; frame score 6.9. This heavy muscled bull had been named grand champion bull at the North American International Livestock Exposition last fall in Louisville, Ky.

Moving into the reserve national championship spot was Pa Do Boxer 455 *x, shown by Don and Pat Stout, Pa Do Polled Shorthorns, Kremlin, Okla This November '94, red with white marks, polled bull is a heavy muscled, rugged boned son of CC Cujo x out of Pa Do Daisy Mae 052 *x. He weighed in at 1,498 pounds with a 3.46 pounds WDA and a frame score of 7.1. He was also named the senior calf champion bull

In the female show, each and every class was filled with quality and depth. Only minute differences separated class winners and eventual champions from second and third place heifers on several class occasions. Judges Gillooly and Barber commented several times on the toughness of the competition and the closeness of the placings.

Erin Hartman of Hartman Cattle Co., Tecumseh, Neb., and Cedar Hill Shorthorns, Bennet, Neb. teamed up with Rexlaine Playmate Design ET *x to win the junior and grand championship at this National Show. This very impressive, July '94, dark roan female is sired by the legendary HS Rodeo Drive 062WR *x and is out of the donor dam, HS Desert Playmate 121WR ET *x. Her show day frame score was 8.1.

Claiming the reserve national champion honors was the junior calf champion female, WF Kilmihill Adalina ET *x, shown by Rachel Williams, Boling, TX. This solid red, polled female is a daughter of Marellan Super Dazzler x out of CCS Kilmihill 14B ET *x. This powerfully complete, March '95 heifer calf was a 6.8 frame score.

Regional Conference To Host Leaders

WALDORF, Md. — Discovering the possibilities of alternative agriculture is the theme of an all-day regional conference, to be held here on Wednesday, April 3.

Join other farmers and growers and learn about alternative agricultural enterprises that may be feasible in the southern Maryland region. Hear about currently successful ventures. Participate in the panel discussions and discover some of the things that area growers are doing to stay profitable.

The Alternative Agriculture Conference for Southern Maryland is scheduled Wednesday, April 3, from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Waldorf Jaycee Community Center.

Topics to be discussed include "Evaluating Your Idea for an Alternative Enterprise," "Adding Value, Increasing Returns," "Water Plants - A Conceivable Cash Crop," and "What Worked, What Didn't, What Now" . . . the results from projects conducted during the 1995 season. In addition, alternative agriculture grant recipients will be recognized and presented with their awards.

The registration fee of $5 includes a luncheon. Preregistration by March 25 is required to ensure luncheon availability. For conference information or to register, contact Candy Walter, agricultural specialist, at (301) 884-2144 or 870-2520.

Beef Expo Begins March 28

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The seventh annual Pennsylvania Beef Expo will be held March 28-31 at Penn State's University Park Campus. Most events will take place in Penn State's Ag Arena, including an expanded trade show and many youth activities.

The expo begins with the Eastern Cattlemen's Symposium at the Atherton Hotel in State College on Thursday, March 28. They symposium will feature two concurrent sessions, "Making Pastures Work For You" and "Making A Health Program Profitable," beginning at 9 a.m. Each will be repeated in the afternoon so participants can attend both sessions.

Registration information for the symposium is available from Dr. John Comerford, associate professor of animal science at Penn State, at (814) 863-3661 or from the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association at (814) 692-4208.

The expanded trade show opens Friday at 9 a.m. and runs through Saturday. "More than 40 exhibitors have reserved space," said Dr. Lowell L. Wilson, Penn State professor of animal science and trade show chair. "There will be special drawings for visitors, featuring prizes from exhibitors." The show also features the Bull-O-Rama, an exhibition of different cattle breeds and commercial sires.

Penn State's Dairy Science Club will staff a "make your own sundae" concession in the trade show area. Other foods will be provided by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Penn State's Block and Bridle Club, and Pennsylvania breed associations.

The "Keystone Rib-Eye on a Roll" sandwich and old-fashioned ham and bean soup will be available throughout the show, and Keystone steak and eggs will be available during breakfast hours.

The Beef Expo also features cattle sales and youth activities. A performance-tested bull sale will begin at noon on Friday, followed by a commercial heifer sale at 3:30 p.m. Sales resume Saturday at 10 a.m., with Angus, Simmental, Polled Hereford and other breeds showing until 5 p.m.

More than $7,000 in cash, trophies, ribbons and other awards will be offered in different junior activities, starting with the Cattlemen's Award Banquet, held Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the Best Western Hotel in State College. The Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association will award an annual scholarship and name the 1996 Cattlemen's Queen, who represents the beef industry at many events throughout the state during the year.

The Beef Skill-A-Thon will start at 7:30 a.m. on Saturday. This event tests individuals and teams on different aspects of modern beef production. The Junior Quiz Bowl will be held from 5 to 7 p.m. Saturday evening, followed by a pizza party for all participants and their advisers. Entry forms for the Skill-A-Thon or the Quiz Bowl are available from the Pennsylvania Beef Council at (800) 572-2020.

The Junior Heifer Show will begin at 9 a.m. on Sunday, followed immediately by the Junior Steer Show. "This is the largest junior beef cattle show in the Northeast," said Wilson. "In previous years, more than 150 head of junior steers and heifers have been exhibited, and there is potential for an even larger show this year." Entry blanks for the junior shows are available from Sue Clair, junior activities coordinator, at (814) 238-1233.

The Beef Expo is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, Penn State's Department of Dairy and Animal Science, the Pennsylvania Beef Council and other statewide organizations. For more information, contact the Pennsylvania Beef Expo, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803, or call (814) 865-5857.

Sheep Sale Hosts National Corriedale Sale

WEST SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — The New England Sheep Sale will be hosting the 1996 National Corriedale Sale, a special Corriedale Junior Show and the American Corriedale Breeders banquet and meeting.

This will be a special year for the Corriedale breeders, because their long-time national breed secretary Russ Jackson is retiring. The show and sale will be held July 19 and 20 at the Big E Fairgrounds in West Springfield.

The sale is open to all breeds of sheep, and entry fees are $15 for ewes and $20 for rams. The entry deadline for the sale is April 15. The number of sheep entered in the past sales averaged about 250 head, and that number will probably increase this year due to the hosting of the National Corriedale Sale.

The New England Sheep and Wool Growers is the sponsor of the sale. This will be the 54th sale. It has been an annual event since 1942. The New England Sale has become one of the major purebred sheep sales in the United States because it attracts consignors and buyers from all over the nation. This year, the sale expects Corriedale entries from the top breeders in the country.

For consignors, the sale offers special cash jackpots for breed and supreme champions besides the low entry fees and the availability for all breeds to participate. There are several classes for lambs of different ages and a bred ewe class. For the buyers, the sale raffles off several special buyer credits for up to $200. The rams from each breed in this sale are offered for sale at one time to make selection and bidding on the ram of the buyer's choice easier. The exception to this rule will be the Corriedale ram sale because of the expected increase in entries. They will be sold one at a time according to the judges sale order.

In conjunction with the sheep sale, there is a used sheep equipment auction. The auction has a $10 entry fee per consignor for items that are to be prelisted in the sheep sale catalog. Post entries are also welcome, and there is no entry fees for these items. The sale commission from the equipment auction goes directly toward the Northeast Youth Sheep Show, which is also held the very same weekend at the Big E Fairgrounds.

Along with the National Corriedale Sale, two Southdown breeders from the Northeast will be getting together to hold their Second Downs Nor'east Production Sale. Splendorview Farm, Cummington, Mass. and Hopkins Southdowns, North Scituate, RI will be offering 25-30 head of young Southdown breeding stock in their sale following the New England Sheep Sale on Saturday.

For more information and/or entry forms, contact Debra Hopkins, Sale Manager, 1125 Danielson Pike, North Scituate, RI 02857-1523, (401) 647-7281.

New Holland Adds Four Tractors

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — Four new 60 Series Gemini(TM) tractors from New Holland in the 90-130 HP range utilize the 6-cylinder Genesis(TM) 7.5 liter diesel for high-torque lugging power with improved fuel efficiency.

These new tractors offer exceptional power and performance with operator comfort and convenience, said New Holland product management. Transmission options include the 18x6 Range Command(TM) and the 23x12 Dual Command(TM). FWD is engaged or disengaged by a fingertip switch.

The four new models are "8160" with 90 PTO HP; the "8260" at 100 PTO HP; the 115 PTO HP "8360"; and the 130 PTO HP "8560." The two larger units are turbocharged. All offer exceptional visibility and easy servicing, the company said. Options let customers choose the features needed for a wide range of applications.

The 23x12 Dual Command transmission offers electrohydraulic, on-the-go hi-lo shift under full load with four synchromesh gears in three ranges. An optional creeper gear is also available. A clutchless electro-hydraulic shuttle lever on the steering column provides easy forward/reverse operation.

Mycogen Seeds Will Guarantee Purchase

PRESCOTT, Wis. — Mycogen Seeds will provide a written guarantee to purchase grain from transgenic corn plants with Bacillus thuringiensis (Bt)-based insect-resistance if growers who plant Mycogen's Bt seed corn are unable to sell the grain through normal channels.

This purchase guarantee is being offered in response to reports that Archer Daniels Midland (ADM) grain elevators will not accept soybeans containing the Roundup Ready(R) herbicide tolerance gene and may not accept Bt grain corn.

In August 1995, Mycogen received U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) approval to market hybrid seed corn that has been genetically engineered to produce a Bt protein that protects corn plants from feeding damage by European corn borer, a pest that causes as much as $1 billion of damage to the U.S. corn crop each year. Bt proteins have been used for more than 30 years in foliar sprays to selectively control crop pests without harming beneficial insects, animals or humans. In addition to clearance for commercial sale, the EPA granted Mycogen a Tolerance Exemption approving grailn from Bt corn plants for use in food products and as animal feed.

Carl Eibl, president and chief operating officer of Mycogen Corporation, Mycogen Seeds' corporate parent, said the company is confident that BT grain corn will be accepted by U.S. and foreign grain elevators, but is offering the purchase guarantee to ease possible grower concerns about difficulty in selling grain produced by Bt corn plants.

Performance Testing — Does It Pay?

The sire is the most important individual in the flock or herd from a reproductive, genetic, and economic standpoint. In our particular situation, the primary function of the ram is twofold: 1) he contributes to the production of live lambs, and 2) he contributes to the genetic improvement of economically important traits.

To accomplish the first of these two functions, the ram has to have the ability to produce nromal spermatozoa of sufficent quantity. The highly fertile ram not only contributes to twining and lamb viability but also transfers his genetic superiority and fertility to his daughters. In other words, a thorough breeding soundness evaluation is a predictor of the fertility level of a ram.

Probably the best way to impress upon breeders the importance of using performance records in the evaluation and selection of a ram is to understand his genetic impact upon the flock. Approximately 88 percent of the expected genetic change in any one trait over a period of time will come as a result of sire selection. This emphasizes the importance of ram selection since 87.5 per cent of the genes in a flock, where replacement ewes are saved, come from rams used during the last three generations. This is best illustrated in Figure 1.

Sheep producers are confronted at least every third or fourth year with the decision of how much should they pay for a ram. Individual ram performance testing is just one way of predicting a ram's productive worth. Producers are drawn to and utilize, for a variety of reasons, one or more of three common selection methods. These methods of evaluation and selection criteria are based on either 1) pedigree records, 2) individual performance records, and/or 3) progeny records. Pedigree or show records tell us "what the animal should be." Individual performance records tell us "what the animal appears to be." Progeny records tell us "what the animal is." You are free to judge which selection method or combination thereof is most reliable and will impact most on the "genetic improvement" of your flock.

The National Sheep Improvement Program (NSIP), initiated by the American Sheep Industry in 1988, like the Beef Improvement Federation (BIF), is an industry-wide effort to develop a national performance data base that will permit the sheep industry, like the present beef industry, to accurately define superior genetic lines based on Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs). Unfortunately, the sheep industry, to date, has very limited useable date for calculating reasonable EPDs on traits, such as birth weight, 60-, 90-, 120- and 240-day weights or weaning weights, and fleece weights for the wool producing breeds. Additional data from other economically important genetic traits include 1) number of lambs born and 2) total weight of lamb weaned per ewe lambing. The records are also adjusted for dam's age and sex of lambs.

Next to a progeny testing program, we have the Pennsylvania Performance Testing Program or individual performance program where weight gains and breeding soundness examines help verify an animal's breeding worth. The program provides an opportunity to compare individual performance between contemporary groups and later select individuals that show genetic superiority for either lamb and/or production. To do this, the program basically considers birth type, ability to gain, and can include wool production criteria. Adjusted 84-day weights and ratio, a lamb index and ratio, present different methods of evaluating those animals capable of making the greatest contribution to total flock performance.

The intent is to use these measures to estimate the overall breeding value of an animal and rank each according to average flock production levels.

Now, let's consider the potential value of two rams you have invested in from two different sales. Ram A you purchased at an annual breed sale, and Ram B you have bought at the annual Performance Tested sale. Ram A has only a "Progeny Show record" or a pedigree that indicates "what he should be." With the exception of age, sex, birth type, and breed, you have an animal with few to no past production records.

Most often no progeny data exists for calculating EPDs. You basically have a so-called "exceptional ram" that has a tremendous show record but usually lacks any proven production and/or fertility records. The overall shortfall with this selection process is the investment is usually justified publicly by the promoter or seller and privately by the new owner as something worthwhile. Of course, the next step, you breed him to a group of ewes. The question remains, what records do you have for predicting either your long-term potential genetic and/or financial gain?

History tells us that aside from having little if any recorded performance, only about 10 percent of the producers using this particular ram selection method for genetic improvement will or can afford to make any significant financial gains. Most often the added financial rewards are directly proportional to the promotional dollars invested in the enterprise rather than from any measurable gains in performance.

Ram B, on the other hand, has available both individual performance and progeny production records. Using, for example, a reasonable weaning weight EPD of + 8 pounds for the 60-day weaning weight tells you the expected average 60-day weaning weight on lambs from Ram B will be eight pounds heavier than the average performance of lambs within the flock. This boost, of course, is compared to your existing flock records that are evaluated annually though a production testing program recognized by the industry.

In order to appreciate the worth of Ram B with an expected progeny difference value for weaning weight, let's use the scenario where Ram B is bred to 50 ewes for three breeding seasons. You regularly wean 75 lambs (150 percent lamb crop) for each lambing period, which results in a total of 225 lambs. Given Ram B's weaning weight EPD of + 8 pounds added to the average 60-day weaning weight, the result is an additional 1,800 pounds of lamb or 8 pounds x 225 lambs = 1,800 pounds. Using a modest market value of $0.65/pound you would realize an added value of $1170. In addition, the ewe replacements from Ram B would have half of the EPDs from the sire as part of their genetic potential. This added value is still adding value to Ram B even after you discontinue using him. Again, you the producer must judge if selection based on recorded performance data pays.

In summary, there are three good reasons why a producer should buy a performance-tested ram. A bonus is realized when the performance ram also has progeny or NSIP records for calculating certain EPDs.

- Remember the often-repeated phrase, "A ram is more than half your flock." Over three generations, approximately 88 percent of the genetic change, can be attributed to the ram.
- A ram with performance records allows you predict the genetic or production potential and tells you what the animal appears to be or is if progeny data exists. This production information provides greater credence to a sound selection program.
- Ram testing programs are underpromoted and underutilized. Too much emphasis is still placed on the pedigree or "show ring" qualities of purebred rams. These qualities, such as size and condition, birth type, soundness, health, maturity, and conformation, are certainly important factors to consider, but they should be complemented with the individual performance, breeding soundness evaluations, and progeny information in order to provide the most reliable set of selection criteria. A former animal geneticist, Dr. S. Wright, in 1920 clearly stated something that still rings true today: "It is often believed today that successful breeders have some mysterious method of which others are ignorant. Instead, the principles of the successful breeder have been exceedingly simple ... The difficulty lies not so much in knowing the principles as in applying them."

Johne's Disease: An Update

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — "There is no treatment for Johne's disease. The key to preventing, controlling and eliminating Johne's in a herd is management," said Dr. Robert Whitlock associate professor of medicine at New Bolton Center (NBC), the large animal campus of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine School.

Johne's disease costs Pennsylvania's agriculture industry more than $6 million a year. Nationwide, the losses may exceed $1.5 billion, according to Whitlock.

The disease is caused by Mycobacterium paratuberculosis, a bacterium related to the human tuberculosis organism. The clinical disease is usually not obvious until two or three years after exposure to the organism, but may not become apparent until five to eight more years following initial infection.

The bacteria settle in the intestine where their presence causes a thickening of the intestinal lining, leading to malabsorption and loss of protein from the bloodstream into the gut.

Signs of the disease include weight loss, low fertility, repeated mastitis, unthriftyness, reduced milk production, and diarrhea.

The bacteria are contained in the manure and thus may be spread to other cattle in the herd. Newborn calves and young animals are particularly vulnerable. Therefore, the newborn calves need to be separated from the adult cattle as soon as possible after birth and reared in clean, uncontaminated facilities.

Calf hutches and separate heifer barns facilitate separating young stock from the adult cattle that often serve as the source of infection to younger animals.

A 1992 study done by Dr. Raymond W Sweeney, assistant professor of medicine at NBC, showed that in-utero transmission of the disease can occur in heavily infected cows. Thus, in some cases the calf may be born with the infection.

The state of Pennsylvania implemented a Johne's disease control program in 1973 to reduce the prevalence of Johne's disease and to provide farmers with the means to control the disease through management techniques and diagnostic support. Despite these efforts, a comprehensive study in 1983-1984 by Whitlock, Sweeney, and the Pennsylvania research team showed that about 25 percent of the 15,000 dairy herds in the state may be infected and at least 7 percent of all culled dairy cattle were infected at slaughter, suggesting that more than 45,000 adult cattle in Pennsylvania are infected.

The 1973 program emphasized control of the disease in a herd through eradication of affected animals. Studies have shown that removal of animals exhibiting clinical signs is not enough to eliminate the disease.

"If you have one or two cows with clinical signs in a herd, it is likely that at least 15 to 25 others are infected. Of those infected animals, only 25-50 percent can be detected with the current diagnostic tests," said Whitlock. "Thus, the removal of stock with detectable symptoms does not help to control the spread of disease."

In 1992 the state launched a voluntary Johne's certification program. The primary developers of the paratuberculosis test-negative certification program were Dr. Lawrence T. Hutchinson from Penn State, Dr. Max Van Buskirk from the Bureau of Animal Industry, and Drs. Whitlock and Sweeney from University of Pennsylvania.

Removing calves from their dams within 24 hours of birth and rearing them separately from the adults until one year of age is part of the requirements for herd certification.

"The major objective of the program was to certify herds 'test negative' for the Johne's disease rather than focus the diagnostic efforts on known infected herds," said Whitlock. "The certification program involves a number of tests and guidelines for herd management that must be followed. Farmers need to be able to purchase herd replacements that are at very low risk to infection rather than purchase cattle with an unknown Johne's status."

The first step in obtaining paratuberculosis test-negative certification is completion of a cooperative agreement involving the farmer, the herd veterinarian, and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Those herds for which the herd owner and veterinarian can state to the best of their knowledge haven't exhibited any clinical cases in the past five years nor any laboratory evidence of paratuberculosis would be certified "test negative" after two negative herd tests. All other herds would require three negative whole herd tests with the last test to be based on fecal culture rather than serology. If each test is negative, then the herd would be certified as "test negative."

To maintain certification, the herd must be tested every 10-14 months. Only animals over two years of age need to be tested. The initial test is an absorbed enzyme-linked immunoabsorbent assay or ELISA screening test which measures serum antibodies to Mycobacterium paratuberculosis. If an animal is positive, then a fecal culture is performed within 21 days. This test takes about 12 weeks.

Johne's Disease

If the fecal culture is negative, the animal is considered to be "test negative." Another requirement for herds undergoing certification is that additions to the herd must come from progeny born and raised in the herd or be animals from a certified free herd.

If animals from another, non-certified herd are added, these must be kept isolated and must be ELISA tested within 15 days. Animals in a certified herd also may not be vaccinated for Johne's disease as this would give a positive ELISA reading.

Farmers agree to provide separate stalls or calving areas for cows nearing parturition, to remove the calves from their dams within 24 hours of birth, and to raise them separately from the adults until one year of age.

While the cost of the testing is borne by the Department of Agriculture, the herd owner does have to negotiate fees with the veterinarian for the herd examination and/or for the diagnostic sample collection.

"Dairy cattle are an important commodity for Pennsylvania agriculture," said Whitlock. "Not only in terms of milk production, but also for export to other states and other parts of the world. But only healthy animals can be exported, thus it is in the industry's best interest to increase the number of Johne's certified-free herds."

Research at Penn has produced faster test methods and ways to refine existing tests. The Penn team was able to decrease the fecal test time from 16 to 12 weeks by employing centrifuging techniques that concentrate the sample.

"Fecal culture for M. paratuberculosis remains the 'gold standard' for routine detection of individual animals in a herd suspected of having cattle with Johne's disease," said Whitlock. "A fecal culture test, when performed correctly, is the most specific and sensitive test to detect cattle infected with Johne's disease."

Whitlock is working on evaluating a gamma interferon test representing a new advance in diagnostic testing for large animal disease. Samples must be evaluated within a few hours after collection, thus the technique remains confined to the research laboratory. The gamma interferon released from the "T" cells in the samples prepared are measured and those with the highest gamma interferon production represent animals exposed to M. paratuberculosis.

A recent collaborative effort at Penn between Dr. Ray Sweeney and Dr. Philip Scott, chairman of pathobiology, could produce positive results in the future. The marriage of clinical and basic science research is a different approach in the attempt to solve the Johne's disease problem in the Pennsylvania agicultural industry.

Scott, an immunologist, works with a protozoa called leishmania that affects mice and humans. There are similarities between leishmania, a tropical disease, and the mycobacteria that causes Johne's disease.

Scott studies those factors that control immune responses to fight off infection once a disease is established. He also looks at ways the immune system works to prevent the disease from becoming established.

Preliminary evidence shows that control of Johne's disease in cattle may depend on fcators similar to those required for controlling leishmania in mice. Certain proteins called cytokines direct immune responses in both cases. It is possible that cytokines could be used with a new vaccine to try and boost the cow's resistance to Mycobacterium paratuberculosis.

The Johne's disease vaccine available has a poor efficacy because it does not prompt the cow's immune system to produce the proper proteins (cytokines). Drs. Sweeney and Scott are now injecting mice with a potential vaccine to see if they can get a proper response. Once that takes place they will be able to test the vaccine on calves.

Whitlock stresses management of herd health as the only effective combatant againt the spread of Johne's disease.

"Testing is a valuable tool to evaluate the extent of the infection, to identify infected animals, determine the intensity of a control program, and to monitor progress of control efforts," said Whitlock.

To control infection, each farm needs to adopt a program that will accomplish three main goals: 1) Preventing highly susceptible newborn calves and young animals from ingesting manure from infected adults, be it from the dam, the environment, or the feed (or water); 2) Prevent all other susceptible animals from ingesting low levels of infected manure, especially by contamination of feed and water; and 3) Reduce the total farm exposure level to M. paratuberculosis by removing the bacteria from the environment and reducing the number of infected animals that are shedding the bacteria.

Johne's disease is not only a threat to agriculture, it also affects other ruminants such as endangered species in zoos. Entrance to national parks may be prohibited for llamas, commonly used as pack animals, because they may transmit Johne's disease to the big horn sheep and other wild ruminants living there. There is even concern that cattle grazing may be limited on some public lands.

A National Task Force on Johne's Disease was formed in 1995 to combat the disease. Both Dr. Van Buskirk and Dr. Whitlock were appointed to the Task Force and Dr. Whitlock serves as co-chair of this national Johne's disease working group. They will focus on the economic impact of the disease, assessment of current control programs, and diagnostic issues. They will also review the national and international status on Johne's disease research and the possibility of a national or international database about the disease.

On a historic note, the disease was first identified to be present in the USA by Dr. Leonard Pearson in 1905. Pearson served as the third dean of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine, from 1897 to 1909.

The Building you want.
The Lease you need.

Telmark has been leasing equipment for over 30 years. Did you know that we've been leasing new buildings for that long too? Consider the features:

- Tax deductibility and accelerated write-offs: Lease payments are income tax deductible over the term of the lease compared to 20-year depreciation of farm buildings and 39-year depreciation of commercial buildings. Could reduce tax liability this year.
- Low upfront costs: Beginning costs may be as little as one monthly lease payment.
- Flexible lease term: Building lease terms start aggressively at five years but may be as long as ten, twelve, or fifteen years.
- Customized payment schedules: Lease payment schedules match your cash flow. Payment options include monthly, quarterly, annually, as well as, skip or specially designed seasonal payments.

How do you start leasing a building from Telmark? Talk with a qualified builder to determine your needs and building cost. And call your Telmark representative:

BUTLER™
RURAL-BUILDER

No matter what type of building you're looking for shop, retail store, community building or storage facility - we build durable Butler® rural steel buildings with attractive architectural appeal.

Butler shop buildings are built to give you years of high-use value, low maintenance and maximum comfort. Solid, practical design and rugged steel construction make Butler buildings durable and functional for years to come.

Outside: Your Choice

The appearance of your new building is a critical factor. You just tell us what you'd like and we can build it!

Our structural systems are designed to give you complete freedom in planing the size and shape of your building.

Products that Perform from the Building Systems Industry Leader

You can count on Butler to provide the best materials available.

For example, our standard exterior coating for painted panels is Butler-Cote® 500 FP finishing system, a full strength, 70% Kynar 500® & Hylar 5000® coating. Our coating will resist chalking and fading better than industry standard coatings.

Our fasteners represent another area where Butler offers more for your money. The Scrubolt™ fastener by Butler, available on the Butlerib wall and roof systems and the Shadowrib® wall system, is larger and more resistant to the pull-out forces of wind than industry standard fasteners.

MSR Lumber
Truss lumber presents unique challenges! We cannot tolerate warp, bow or twist in the chords and maintain absolutely straight roof-lines and flat ceilings.
Years of selection has shown MSR (Machine-Stress Rated) lumber quite immune to such problems.
Further selection involves tree-species and growing climate. The close-grain, straight-grain, tiny-knot characteristics of SPF (Spruce-Pine-Fir) grown in the Pacific Northwest has come out best in further immunity - and has become the Black Bear Standard. Eastern and southern lumber simply falls short in those essentials.

Laser-Layout
LASER-LAYOUT of each truss on the assembly table verifies alignment and saw-cut of each chord, web and joint - plus size and positioning of each connector plate. At this stage with this lumber, what LAYS STRAIGHT, STAYS STRAIGHT!

BEAVER FENCE SYSTEMS

Darren Peachey, Belleville, PA
"The spring of 1995 was a turning point for our dairy operation as we moved from a high input operation to an intensive grazing system. Intensive Grazing has been everything we hoped it would be. Our cows are healthier and we have less labor per cow. The life of our machinery will be longer All in all it spells higher profits.

The first thing we did was talk to other people who were grazing to get ideas that we could incorporate into our dairy operation We hired Beaver Fence Systems to build high tensile fence around the entire farm and we use portable fence to divide the interior into paddocks.

Today's dairy economy does not allow us to keep doing things the way we have always done them. We need to keep looking for more profitable ways of producing milk and managing our land. Intensive grazing has made our business more profitable."

Cut stall clean-out time by 50% with a Millcreek Compact Spreader.

"The spreading efficiency sure outweighs the price. This is a wonderful machine. I couldn't be more pleased."
EARL SINKS - Brock, Texas

Say "Good-Bye" to back-breaking manure handling and cut stall clean-out time in half. Hook an affordable Millcreek Compact Spreader to your 10 hp garden tractor, take it right to the stall for easy loading. No more wheelbarrow.

Millcreek Spreaders last and last
Since spreaders are our specialty, we put more into each one. For example our 20-year guaranteed floor will never rust or rot. Positive chain drive provides excellent spreading action. And tough steel construction holds up to rugged farm use. Seven sizes, for 1-horse barns to 50-horse stables. PTO and ground drive models available.

IN ALUMINUM BODIES
EBY BUILDS IT

M.H. Eby custom-builds aluminum truck bodies for the agri-transportation market. Nobody offers more sizes and options in:

- FLATBED BODIES - Lengths to 32', choice of 5 widths.
- GRAIN BODIES - Lengths to 24', landscape and general purpose dumps to 12'.
- LANDSCAPE BODIES - Lengths to 12', We'll build to your specs!

Let EBY custom build one for you.

For greater payload capacity, Eby's aluminum design is equal in strength to steel and up to 40% lighter. Our corrosion-resistant components never need painting. That means minimum maintenance, improved appearance and higher resale value.

Eby products have superior standard features. And we offer customer options for virtually any application. Agriculture is your business - building bodies to haul it is ours.

415 DISCBINE®

WIDE CUT- EVEN CONDITIONING

You'll love the wide-cutting performance of the Model 415 Discbine® disc mower-conditioner. Seven discs make an 11-1/2-foot cut through your toughest crops. And with the New Holland torsion-bar roll-pressure system, you get consistent conditioning even in uneven crop conditions. Plus, roll pressure decreases automatically to let slugs pass through.

Stop in and see the big performance of the "415".

NEW HOLLAND

BEST-IN-CLASS

PERFORMANCE AND CAPACITY

The "570" New Holland square baler brings together performance, reliability and capacity.

- Rotary feeding system. Adds consistency and bale quality.
- Faster plunger stroke. 93 SPM. A Cat. six driveline and increased slip clutch setting add capacity.
- Wide Super-Sweep ™ pickup. 65" wide to get those big scattered windrows.
- Stronger materials. In bale case and plunger.
- Gear-driven tying mechanisms. Wire or twine.

Ask for a demonstration of the New Holland "570" baler... the best-in-class square baler.

In Need of a Square Baler?

See Binkley & Hurst Bros. Today!

There are many benefits of the Case International 8530 center-line rectangular baler. Narrow transport width Easy in-field maneuverability. Tight, uniform shaped bales And a big appetite for baling hay

You'll appreciate the 8530 with the first bale you make The high speed plunger provides the capacity you expect And, a wide, low-profile pickup and center-line feeding mean more leaves end up in the bale, not on the ground

And, if that's not enough, there are plenty of options available. A hydraulic pickup lift, flotation tires, hydraulic density control, wagon hitch and a choice of bale chutes or hydraulic bale thrower with electric controls.

Stop in and find out more about the Case International 8530 rectangular baler.

JUMBO BALES

A Case International 8580 Large Rectangular Baler Makes JUMBO bales - up to 2,000 pounds

It compresses hay equivalent to about 40 conventional bales into a single high-density package. The high-end capacity and performance of the 8580 means you can push these big bales throught the machine all day — every day. That's a lot of hay!

And it's quality hay, too. The center-line design handles the crop gently to preserve nutritious leaves. The bales are uniformly shaped for efficient handling and shipping.

The 8580 also has a full list of standard features. Low-profile pickup, pre-packer chamber, massive gearbox, heavy-duty components throughout, electronic monitoring, double-tie knotters and low maintenance. And it's simple to operate.

The Case International 8580 is a JUMBO value too.

These racks are of all steel construction. The extensive field use and testing has proven this design to be adequate in strength and durability. Available in both regular straight bar or the new curved bar design as shown in the picture. The curved bar tilts the load towards the centre for greater stability
The non-adjustable racks are of all-welded construction and available in various lengths and widths for different size and number of bales.
Adjustable racks have movable cross members which can be set anywhere along the entire length of rack. Clamping method is simple and rigid and easily adjustable Crosses are removable for shipping or storage.
The longitude beams on the 30 ft. model are 4x10x.188 H.S. Tube. The longitude beams on the 20 or 25 ft. model are 4x8. The cross members are 3x5x150 H.S. Tube.

Discover Quality... Discover Value...

The cornerstone of our product offering is the world's largest selling line of self-propelled forage harvesters—the Jaguar.

Next, Rollant round balers make dense bales that stand up and stay weather-tight, resist spoilage, and fit nearly any size operation. It's no wonder CLAAS is North America's leading importer of round balers.

Our world class Quadrant large square balers and Markant conventional size square balers offer the capacity to produce tight bales that keep the air out and minimize nutrient loss.

CLAAS® hay tools will meet your needs and exceed your expectations.

Volto rotary tedders reduce field time. Spread cut crops over an area up to 24 ft. wide, accelerate dry down and make hay in a day. High speed Corto rotary rakes gently sweep crops into windrows for easier baling. Liner twin rotor rakes clear a swath up to 24 ft. wide.

More also includes CLAAS's reputation for low maintenance, long-life, and service after the sale. You can expect more from CLAAS because we have more to give. Call now and see just how much more CLAAS has to give.

AGCO ALLIS MODEL 5670 TRACTOR

UTILITY VERSATILITY

The AGCO Allis 5670 utility tractor offers fuel efficiency, reliable drawbar and PTO power, and excellent maneuverability in the 63 PTO hp range. They're also backed by a 4-year/4,000-hour warranty.

• Air- and oil-cooled diesel reliability. The 4-cylinder air-cooled and oil-cooled diesel engine delivers 63 PTO hp in the 5670 with a 22% torque rise. It also eliminates components that cause downtime in liquid-cooled engines. Plus, it is among the best in fuel consumption tests.

• Lots of speed choices. The synchro-power transmission with synchro-reverser offers 12 forward and 12 reverse speeds, planetary final drive and a self-adjusting, hydraulically-actuated clutch. The optional transmissions include 16 forward and 16 reverse with creeper speeds and a dual-speed of 24 forward and 12 reverse speeds and is available with either 2WD or AWD.

• PTO power to do more. The independent PTO operates at 540/1,000 rpm with 6- and 21-spline shafts and a hydraulically-actuated wet PTO clutch. The Category II/I 3-point hitch has a convenient rear remote control and is equipped with telescopic stabilizers. Optional telescopic lower links are available.

• Quality features put you in control. The 5600 Series tractors ride on premium Goodyear radial tires. They have hydrostatic power steering, hydraulically-actuated wet disc brakes, and a mechanically-actuated differential lock. AWD models have four-wheel brakes for 40% better braking and an operator controlled front differential lock for tighter turns.
